Emperor Mussolini?
Mellon Pays.
Character Counts.
The Sun's Power.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

IF MUSSOLINI does plan to restore the old Roman empire, and make himself emperor, he will play the part well, having the three necessaries, energy, courage and looks. He talks like an emperor in his latest warning to Austria on the Austrian Tyrol. "Hereafter not words, but deeds will speak for me."

MUSSOLINI says Italy needs a new aristocracy based on service and action.

The Fascisti say their leader "cannot be confined within any law and is given to us by the will of God."

It sounds dangerous for the Italian royal family. The King, an honest man who has lived up to his obligations, showing good government in the Mussolini whirlwind, is after all an accident of birth.

Mussolini is his own creation.

FASCISM plans to get the Vatican on its side by granting limited temporal power to the Pope, restoring certain territory outside of the Vatican to the Pope, and paying damages for Papal property taken in the Garibaldi days.

That plan may not work smoothly, for the Pope has already denounced "any conception of the state which absorbs and monopolizes everything." Mussolini represents such a conception.

UNCLE SAM sets a good example to the big crowd by getting rid of debt. In February Mr. Mellon paid off $90,000,000 of debt. The public is fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Mellon, perhaps the ablest business man in the United States, for less than one-tenth of one per cent of his real value.

INDIVIDUALS and character count, even in "cold-blooded" high finance. Common stock of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad sold on Saturday at $12. It sold last month at $30.

The railroad is not less valuable than it was. Florida traffic, freight and passengers, will soon be greater than ever. But S. Davies Warfield, who built up the Seaboard, knew how to appreciate its friends and fight its enemies, is dead.

IT'S EASY to buy rails, locomotives and cars, but not easy to find great railroad men like Warfield, Harriman, Hill.

In United States business generally it is hard to find the $50,000 a year man, still more difficult to find the $250,000 man, quite easy to find the $1,200 a year man who thinks he ought to have $50,000 a year.

ONCE science thought the earth would last, at most, a few million years, because the sun "burning up" so rapidly, could not last longer. Physicists told geologists it was silly to say that the world had existed for hundreds of millions of years because the sun, big as it is, could not have gone on burning all that time.

NOW we know the sun isn't merely a big bonfire, and a New York scientific body offers cash for the best thesis on "sources of the sun's gigantic energy."

It may be "intra-atomic" energy created by release of atomic energy under the sun's conditions of heat and pressure.

It is surmised also that the sun possesses great masses of radio active material, supplying light and heat to our corner of the universe.

ONE THING is certain and can be proved. The sun's heat, light and power will continue to warm this little earth, big Jupiter, and the rest of our planetary family, for hundreds of millions of years more. There is plenty of time for your corner lot to go up in value.

CHICAGO'S corner, inside lots, increased in value $575,000,000 in 1927.

Making possible increased taxation, this enables Chicago to hire 3,000 more policemen and 1,000 more firemen that the city needs.

Chicago's energetic citizenship, proved by city improvements and a park system that put to shame New York and some other big cities explain the increased values.

Thugs Miss Money

MISS MATILDA DOERFLINGER

When two holdup men entered the P. H. Butler store, Union and Mifflin avenues, Wilkinsburg, Saturday night, they held Miss Matilda Doerflinger, the store manager, at bay with revolvers while they took $12 from the cash register, from which, a few minutes before, a company collector had removed the day's receipts, $250. Miss Doerflinger said the thugs missed the collector by five minutes.

Tax Carnegie Gifts

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Annuities bequeathed in wills are taxable as income of the beneficiary under the Federal laws, the United States Supreme Court ruled today in a Pennsylvania case arising from a bequest of the late Andrew Carnegie.

Chief Justice Taft receives an annuity from Carnegie's fortune and this decision affects him, although it was handed down in a case appealed by Cora B. Beatty, who inherited a $5,000 annual income from her husband, John W. Beatty, Pittsburgh.

TAFT'S HANDS OFF

The chief justice did not participate in this decision.

Mrs. Beatty's lawyers argued that the annuity was not a bequest of income from any special fund, but simply a specified amount for the life of Beatty, and after his death, the life of his widow.

The two-judge district court in Pittsburgh upheld the Beatty plea, but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision and decided in favor of the government holding that the $5,000 was income from a trust fund.

FRICK HEIRS INTERESTED

Four heirs of the late Henry C. Frick, steel magnate, associated with Carnegie, filed a brief opposing the government in this case.

Call Todd Charges Fake

"I wish most emphatically to deny the statements of W. E. Clyde Todd in his interview as published in the Sunday edition of The Sun-Telegraph," said Dr. Andrey Avinoff, director of the Carnegie Museum, in commenting on the remarks of the curator of ornithology Saturday and which blamed the board of trustees of the institute for the woeful lack of funds under

BRAND VELMA LOVE KILLER

POLICE CALL IN WIDOW

Mrs. Mary Spehar, 27, was ordered taken into custody today in connection with the death of her husband, John Spehar, 35, Butler street saloonkeeper, found fatally shot and clubbed at the door of his garage at his home, 4520 Stanton avenue, early Sunday morning. Alleged discrepancies in her statement to detectives led to the order.

It was learned this morning that relations between Spehar and his wife were strained and reports of frequent altercations, in which Spehar accused his wife of being friendly with other men, reached Director of Public Safety James M. Clark. An order followed to Lieut. David Corbett of the homicide squad to take the woman into custody for questioning.

WIFE BLAMES THUGS

According to the story related to detectives by Mrs. Spehar, her husband was accosted by three thugs when the couple was putting an auto in the garage at 1:30 Sunday morning.

As he slowed his car to a stop in front of the garage three men came from behind the building and after one of them had felled the saloonkeeper with a pick handle, anothe shot him through the chest, th wife says.

The third man, according to Mr Spehar, dragged her from the c and stifled her screams. The tr then took their victim's car a sped away, the woman said.

Mrs. Spehar explained that s then entered another car to dri her husband to the hospital, b the engine failed to start. Sor persons, apparently the thugs, h disabled it by cutting the igniti wires, she said.

County's Official Indian Skids Along War Path

THE peace pipe is a little used article on the reservation of Chief Two Eagle, full-blooded Cherokee Indian installed recently by the county commissioners as game keeper at South Park to lend color and primeval atmosphere, according to reports drifting into the City-County building.

Chief Two Eagle, chased Custodian Robert Nicholson, of South Park, with a spade one day last week, which resulted in a warrant being sworn out for the Indian's arrest, Superintendent of County Parks Paul D. Riis admitted today.

The warrant was not served but was merely held to guarantee the Chief's holding to his promise of remaining a "good Indian" thereafter.

It seems, according to the Chief's superiors, that he insisted on doing as he "d——d pleased" instead of taking orders from his white brothers on the county payroll.

Rumors that Two Eagle astride his horse "Thunderbolt" was "shooting up" the park and menacing buffalo and deer were branded as unfounded.

Chief Two Eagle, imported from Beaver Falls, is said to have been disappointed at the proceeds of sales of beaded bags in the making of which he is an adept.

'OTHER' GIRL IN TRIAL

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PAINESVILLE, O., March 5.—As Velma West went on trial today for the murder of her husband, the state sprang a surprise that fell like a bombshell on this quiet village.

The surprise came in the state's answer to the conundrum, "Why did Velma West kill Eddie West in their honeymoon cottage? Why did she beat her husband to death with a hammer?"

Jealousy, the state charges, is the reason. Kisses exchanged between the husband and Miss Mabel Young, Velma's closest friend, drove the blonde slayer into a jealous rage that, according to the prosecution, culminated in the murder.

"TRIANGLE" BOBS UP

The "eternal triangle" development bobbing up suddenly in the case has Painesville all agog. The suddenness with which it came has doubled the excitement. A romantic liason had hitherto been unsuspected. And now to find that the state accuses Velma's best friend of accepting the affections which everyone believed were Velma's alone, has stirred the emotions of the trial spectators, hitherto expecting

Institute To Test Road

The Mellon Institute today agreed to make a thorough investigation of the concrete work on the Mt. Washington roadway, which shows serious defects which may affect its strength and durability.

This was announced after a conference in which Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, his chief engineer, C. M. Reppert, Councilman James F. Malone and Dr. E. R. Weidlein, director of the institute, participated. After the conference Dr. Weidlein, who already has begun his investigation, issued this statement:

"In conference, Mellon Institute expressed a willingness to cooperate in laying out a program to make a thorough investigation of the Mt. Washington roadway bridge. This program will determine where and how tests shall be made, the scope of the work, and, when the investigation is completed, will answer all questions regarding cause of condition, rehabilitation and future methods to be followed to prevent repetition."

Postoffice Safe Is Looted

Robbers unlocked a safe in the Harmarville postoffice and stole $1,000 worth of merchandise from the store of the Luzerne Mercantile Company, in which the postoffice is located, today.

MEN IN ROOMS, CO-EDS KICK

Twenty University of Pittsburgh coeds, intending to live in a six-room apartment, paid $125 for rent last September, with $5.25 extra for the use of a telephone, only to find men occupying the rooms when a "party" committee of the girls went to the place to decorate it for a "housewarming."

This was the testimony of three of the coeds who appeared in Morals Court today against Mrs. Rosella Madden, owner of the apartment at 149 North Craig street.

The girls testified that Mrs. Madden, while refusing to evict the male occupants, also would not return the rent money. The question of a chaperone entered the argument, the girls saying they had arranged for a woman to live with them.

Mrs. Madden, at the request of her attorney, was held for court on a charge of fraudulent conversion. The girls who testified are Jane Lyon, 1236 Wisconsin avenue, Dormont; Evelyn Long, 1651 Potomac avenue, Dormont, and Mildred Junger, 339 Cornell avenue, Bellevue.

which the museum is operating.

"It completely misrepresents the situation of our museum in regard to the present and the future," continued Director Avinoff's statement. "We are in reality on the theshold of important developments, and I hope substantial improvements in our circumstances.

HAVE CONSTRUCTIVE PLAN

"It is natural that, as with every large institution of research and education, the Carnegie Museum experiences a growing need of resources. Precisely, in order to meet this situation, the board of trustees sometime ago devised and adopted a constructive plan taking care of the present condition and the future problems for a period of many years. Already assistance is forthcoming under the provision of this plan, and considerable help is confidently expected in the future.

"A sense of harmony happily prevails among the different departments and the administrative personnel of our institute, and this mutual confidence and trust constitutes a vital asset for our progress and success. The gratifying factors are to be ascribed largely to the splendid efforts of my predecessors, of whom Dr. William J. Holland is now director emeritus and is an internationally recognized authority in science and one of the best known American men of learning. The late Dr. Douglas Stewart deservedly received recognition for his service to the public through this museum.

"I am confident of the future of this museum and have no doubt that it is bound to achieve, with steadily popular support, an increasingly broad mission in scientific research and the dissemination of knowledge."

CHURCH DENIES CHARGE

Colonel Samuel Harden Church, president of the Board of Trustees of Carnegie Institute, issued a statement last night, denying the charge made by Curator Todd.

"He (Dr. Todd) charges the board of trustees with being unconcerned over the financial necessities of the museum, says the institution is going to seed and utters an abominable slur upon Dr. W. J. Holland, former director, whose versatile scholarship and brilliant achievements in the field of scientific research made his administration one of the permanent glories of the Carnegie Institute," the Church statement says.

"It is true that the Carnegie Institute, like nearly all other great institutions of art and learning in this country—Yale, Harvard, Princeton, the Metropolitan Art Museum and the rest—needs new funds for the healthy and natural expansion of its various developments.

TO INCREASE FUNDS

"Fully one year ago, however, the trustees adopted a carefully prepared plan for the increase of its endowment resources to extend over a period of 20 years and already these new funds are being obtained under quiet methods which do not reach the general public through the newspapers.

"Only yesterday, for example, a good friend handed me $25,000 for the museum exclusively and promised me $75,000 more by June 1. No, I cannot give his name. The museum is healthy and thriving and no other department of the institute is going to seed.

"On the contrary, we have ample funds for present needs, together with such new gifts of money and such splendid assurances of future support that the growth of every department in interest, usefulness and service is abundantly secure."

INSTITUTE AGOG

The air about the Carnegie Institute was electrified this morning, following publication in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph of an interview with Curator Todd.

Dr. William J. Holland, director-emeritus, with a liberal display of broad-mindedness, manifested no incense over the reference to him in the interview.

"Mr. Todd is one of the most painstaking, meticulous and patient scientists I have ever known," Dr. Holland said. "He came to me when he was a mere boy and we took him in here. It is true the museum has gone along for many years on mighty little 'dough,' but we have done the best we could and are proud of our institution. There is no other museum in the country doing more for the school children in giving scientific and art knowledge."

"WORM HAS TURNED"

Curator Todd, somewhat surprised himself that he was the center of such a maelstrom of charges, denials and counter-charges, took the matter with philosophic suffering.

"I guess I will have to stick by my guns," he said. "If I have to be the goat, I can best stand it of others here, but I don't want to be the goat. However, I suppose I will have to admit it and simply say the worm has turned!"

DEFER STRIKE PROBE TILL WEDNESDAY

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP.)—Senate investigation of the situation in the central bituminous fields, where union miners have been out of work for nearly a year, has been deferred until Wednesday.

The Interstate Commerce Committee, which is to conduct the inquiry, decided today that it would receive the report of its special subcommittee which visited the Western Pennsylvania district before calling any witnesses.

It had been the intention of the committee to begin its investigation tomorrow and to that end more than a score of witnesses had been summoned.

DAVIS TO GIVE DATA

Reiterating his statement in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph that the Jacksonville agreement between coal miners and operators always has been considered by him to be a binding contract, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis discussed the coal strike investigation while in Pittsburgh for an hour last night. He was en route from his father's home in Sharon, to Washington.

Secretary Davis made his comment on the Jacksonville agreement in Sharon on Saturday night while discussing the Pittsburgh Coal Company's interpretation its application.

Today Secretary Davis will confer with Senator Gooding, head the delegation of four senators who last week made an inspection of the mine situation.

REPORT COST $600,000

"We will provide him with all data concerning the coal industry." Secretary Davis said. "It is all there for him. The 'Hammond Report' alone, which cost $600,000, will give the committee all the information they need on the situation. And it can be brought up to date by statistics in the Department of Labor."

Senator Gooding, heretofore considered an extreme conservative, hopes to be the instrument of stabilizing the coal industry "as his contribution to the welfare of the country in the Senate," Secretary Davis declared.

The Senate's sub-committee report on the coal strike investigation conducted in local mining communities will be presented to the Interstate Commerce Committee in Washington tomorrow, it was said yesterday by Philip Murray, internatoinal vice president of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Murray returned to Pittsburgh Saturday from Washington in company with P. T. Fagan, district president of the organization.

only the dull routine of a squabble over Velma's sanity.

The kisses, likely to play such an important role in the trial, were exchanged at numerous house parties attended by Velma, her husband and Mabel Young, the state charges. It was to Miss Young's home in Cleveland that 21-year-old Velma went after the slaying of West at their Perry (O.) cottage. The state will seek to show that Mrs. West danced, sang and played bridge a few hours after the slaying occurred.

Huge throngs today stormed the doors of the courtroom long before court opened. Every seat was filled an hour before the scheduled hour of the opening of court. The start of the trial was delayed while the judge and the lawyers for both sides went into conference in the judge's chambers. Nearly all the spectators were women.

The blonde blue-eyed Velma was brought into the courtroom through a tunnel from the little red jail in back of the courthouse, accompanied by the sheriff and a matron. She was muffled in a huge light gray coat. She strode swiftly to her seat, and waited for opening of court, her fingers twitching nervously as she removed her tan gloves. A narrow silver wedding ring glinted from one of her slender fingers.

QUOTES "CONFESSION"

Meanwhile, Sheriff Rasmussen today revealed reputed details of Velma's confession. The sheriff quoted Velma as saying that she had secretly nursed for weeks a desire to kill her husband.

Velma told him, Rasmussen declares, that "she struck West with the hammer after he refused to give her the keys to the roadster, which she intended to drive to Cleveland. "She said," the sheriff continued, "that when he refused to give her the keys he struck her on the nose and drew blood. Velma declared she struck him then with the hammer. He fell to his knees and started to rise and she felled him again.

"Half a dozen times she felled the husband when he tried to rise to his feet until seven or eight blows were struck and he lay still. Then, according to the girl, she tied his hands and feet and covered him with the quilt and blankets from the bed and proceeded to change clothes and wash her hands.

"She admitted burning her blood-stained clothes in the furnace."

HOLIDAY "THRILL"

Painesville is a church-going town and last night was Sabbath night, but you'd never have known it. Especially around the county jail. For upstairs in her cell sat Velma West, "cool as a cucumber," the sheriff tells you confidentially, and calls all rumors to me contrary "apple sauce."

But downstairs bedlam let loose, even the vagabonds spending a comfortable winter at the expense of the county, and there is a crowd of them, have caught the spirit. They sang "The Prisoner's Song" to the tops of their voices, and gloried in the warmth and holiday excitement of the usually quiet jail.

Everyone was too busy to stop them, or else, nobody cares.

In and out of the corridors and the sheriff's office filed dozens of people, most of them gentlemen of the press, trying to scoop one another on some new and important angle to the great murder trial.

In a little room off the sheriff's office little 3-year-old Betty Rasmussen, the sheriff's daughter, sat on the top of a big desk and listened to one of the deputies play an old music box. It grinds out "Love Me and the World Is Mine," in a wheezy twang, but Betty loves it. And she grinned and pointed up and said in her baby voice: "Bad girl upstairs, kill man. Maybe she killed, too, bad, bad Velma."

Why, this is going to make a circus look like an amateur performance of East Lynne given by the Ladies Aid, a rare opportunity for little Painesville, and there's going to be a mad scramble for ringside seats.

Such is life, and there's something morbid in the best and the worst of us.

May Tax Beauty Shops

Beauty parlors are placed under the supervision of the Department of Health by an ordinance presented in Council today by Councilman James F. Malone.

In addition to giving the department control of such establishments, the city, under the terms of the ordinance, would collect its share of the thousands of dollars spent for beauty treatments by the women (and men?) of Pittsburgh by taxing owners $5 and operators $2 annually.

Before being licensed operators, they would be required to pass a physical examination. The ordinance lays down various regulations governing the sanitation of the premises and the sterilization of all instruments used.

The bill is similar to the statewide beauty parlor license bill defeated by the Legislature after having been introduced by Miss Helen Grimes. It was presented in Council, it was said, at the request of Representative Joseph C. Marcus, counsel for an organization of owners and operators.

SUGGESTS SECRET VOTE

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—As New York City's threatened transit strike neared a crisis today, a new plan said to be favored by Mayor James J. Walker to take a secret vote of the 15,000 workers on their union preference was up for consideration.

The workers under the suggested plan would be asked to say which labor organization they favored, the A. F. of L. body, the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, or the Interborough Rapid Transit Brotherhood, the so-called company union. The Amalgamated claims an 80 per cent membership while the company denies it is more than 10 per cent.

The Amalgamated has proposed that the Interborough submit the case of the 21 suspended union men—the hub of the controversy—to a board headed by Mayor Walker. The company is expected to refuse this proposal, as it has already offered to have the case reviewed by its legal department. It was unofficially said in City Hall circles that the preference voting plan would be put forward.

A union meeting has been called for Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, two hours after the time limit it has set for the company to accept its proposal for arbitration.

One hundred and fifteen miles of the city subway and elevated lines would be affected by a strike.

They include Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, the former Mrs. Grover Cleveland, David Lloyd George and a number of other prominent persons. Their annuities were paid from interest on United States Steel Corporation bonds.

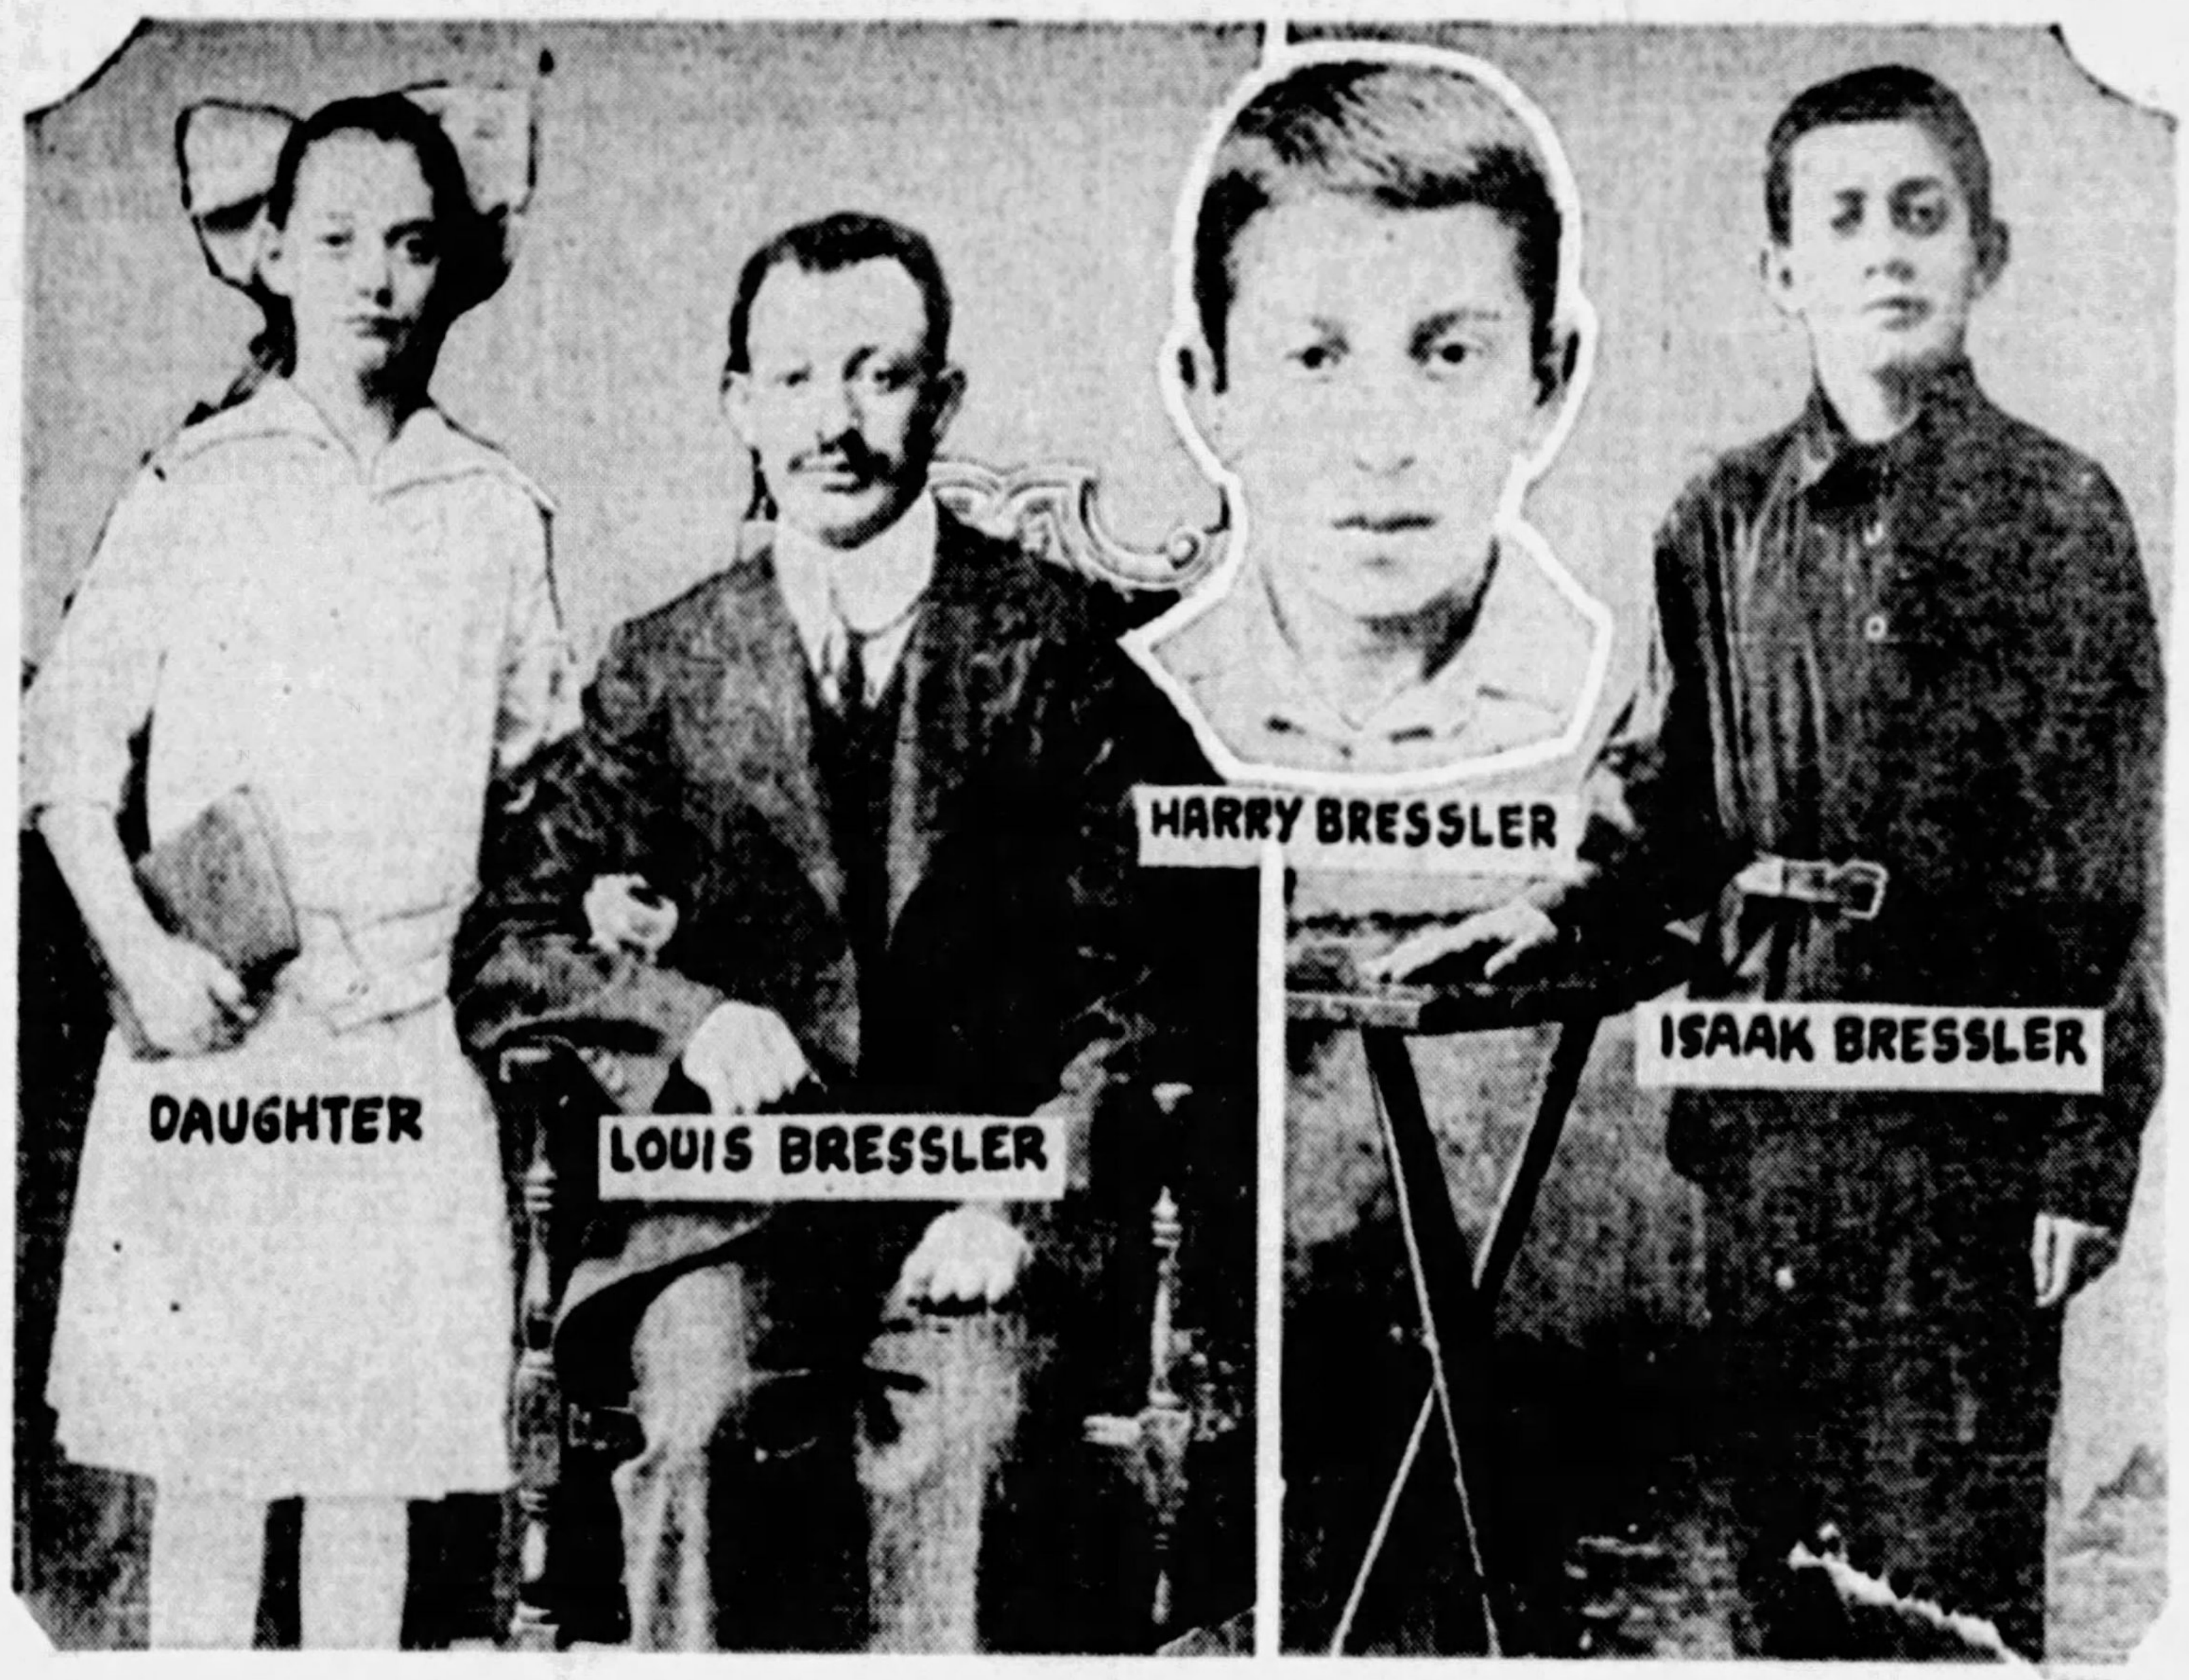
FATHER FINDS HIS LONG-LOST SONS



LONG SEARCH REWARDED

Louis Bressler, 45, of 1845 Cliff street, came to America in 1913, leaving his wife and sons Harry and Izaak in Russia with his wife. Before he could save money to bring them here, the war broke out, his wife died and the children were scattered. Harry was found in Kieff in 1923 and brought to this country.

LOST 15 YEARS

Izaak Bressler, now aged 16, was an infant and was identified by a sixth finger on his left hand when a Jewish welfare organization found him a grown lad. The father was notified and he expects the son to arrive here this month. The third child is a daughter.

Kaufmann-Looby Opens New Women's Store Here

TO SUPPLY LATEST MODE

Pittsburgh's newest store, the Kaufmann-Looby, opened today. It is catering exclusively to the more discriminating women shoppers.

The new store, at 627-29 Penn avenue, is under the management of Ludwig Kaufmann and Frances Looby, both of whom formerly were associated with the Kaufmann & Baer organization.

It has been started with an eye to the woman shopper who seeks the smartest mode in apparel and in apparel accessories.

ORNATE DECORATIONS

The shop itself is finished in a modern—and pleasing—manner.

A gold base design runs through the four floors. Blue, gold, cream and the deep brown of walnut harmonize with the basic color plan on each floor.

The first floor, finished in Flemish walnut and bronze, houses an unusual beauty salon on a balcony at the rear.

Deep cream woodwork accentuates the gold base of the second floor where the gowns, dresses, millinery and negligees are found.

Ensembles, wraps, suits, coats and shoes will be found on the third floor. American walnut adds a depth and warmth to this section's color scheme.

Sports wear and furs amid a warm bronze-green background, will be sold on the fourth floor.

LATEST IMPORTATIONS

Each floor has its own French rooms, where the newest importations of the department are on view.

Needlepoint tapestry, carpeting of Australian duvetyne, shaded in rose-biege, and bronze-banded light shades, give the entire store a rich, quiet tone that is a credit to its designers and is refreshing to the shoppers.

Miss Looby has just returned from a six-month tour abroad, during which she purchased much merchandise in the smart European modes. Much of this is on exhibition at the opening.

A fashion show, with models displaying the choice bits of fashion from a half-dozen European style centers, featured the opening day's program.

Made $1,164.01 in "Best Year," Miner Says

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 5—"How much does a miner earn?" always has been a moot question. John P. Wagner has revealed how much he made under ideal conditions in 1926. Working 230 days, all the time the mine was in operation, Wagner says he drew $1,319.98 under the Jacksonville scale. After deducting necessary expenses as a loader amounting to $155.97, he had a net wage balance of $1,164.01, or approximately $5.06 a day. Wagner has been a miner for 27 years and says the 230 working days operated by the mine where he was employed was above the average time of employment in the Canonsburg district.

FOIL KILLER FATHER'S SUICIDE

By International News Service.

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., March 5.—George A. Chisholm, confessed slayer of his two young sons, was confined today in a barren cell at the Indiana Harbor jail. The cell is without furnishings of any kind to keep the prisoner from carrying out his threat of self-destruction.

The change in cells was ordered last night by Police Capt. Edward Knight after Chisholm had attempted to take his own life by piercing his jugular vein with the prong of a belt buckle. Capt. Knight also ordered two guards posted at the cell door to keep a continuous watch upon the prisoner.

This was Chisholm's second narrow escape from death. The first came Saturday at the hands of a mob which surrounded the East Chicago (Ind.) jail soon after Chisholm had confessed that he had induced his sons, George, 9, and Edgar, 7, to wrap themselves with wire and jump into the ship canal to their deaths.

This confession was later revised,

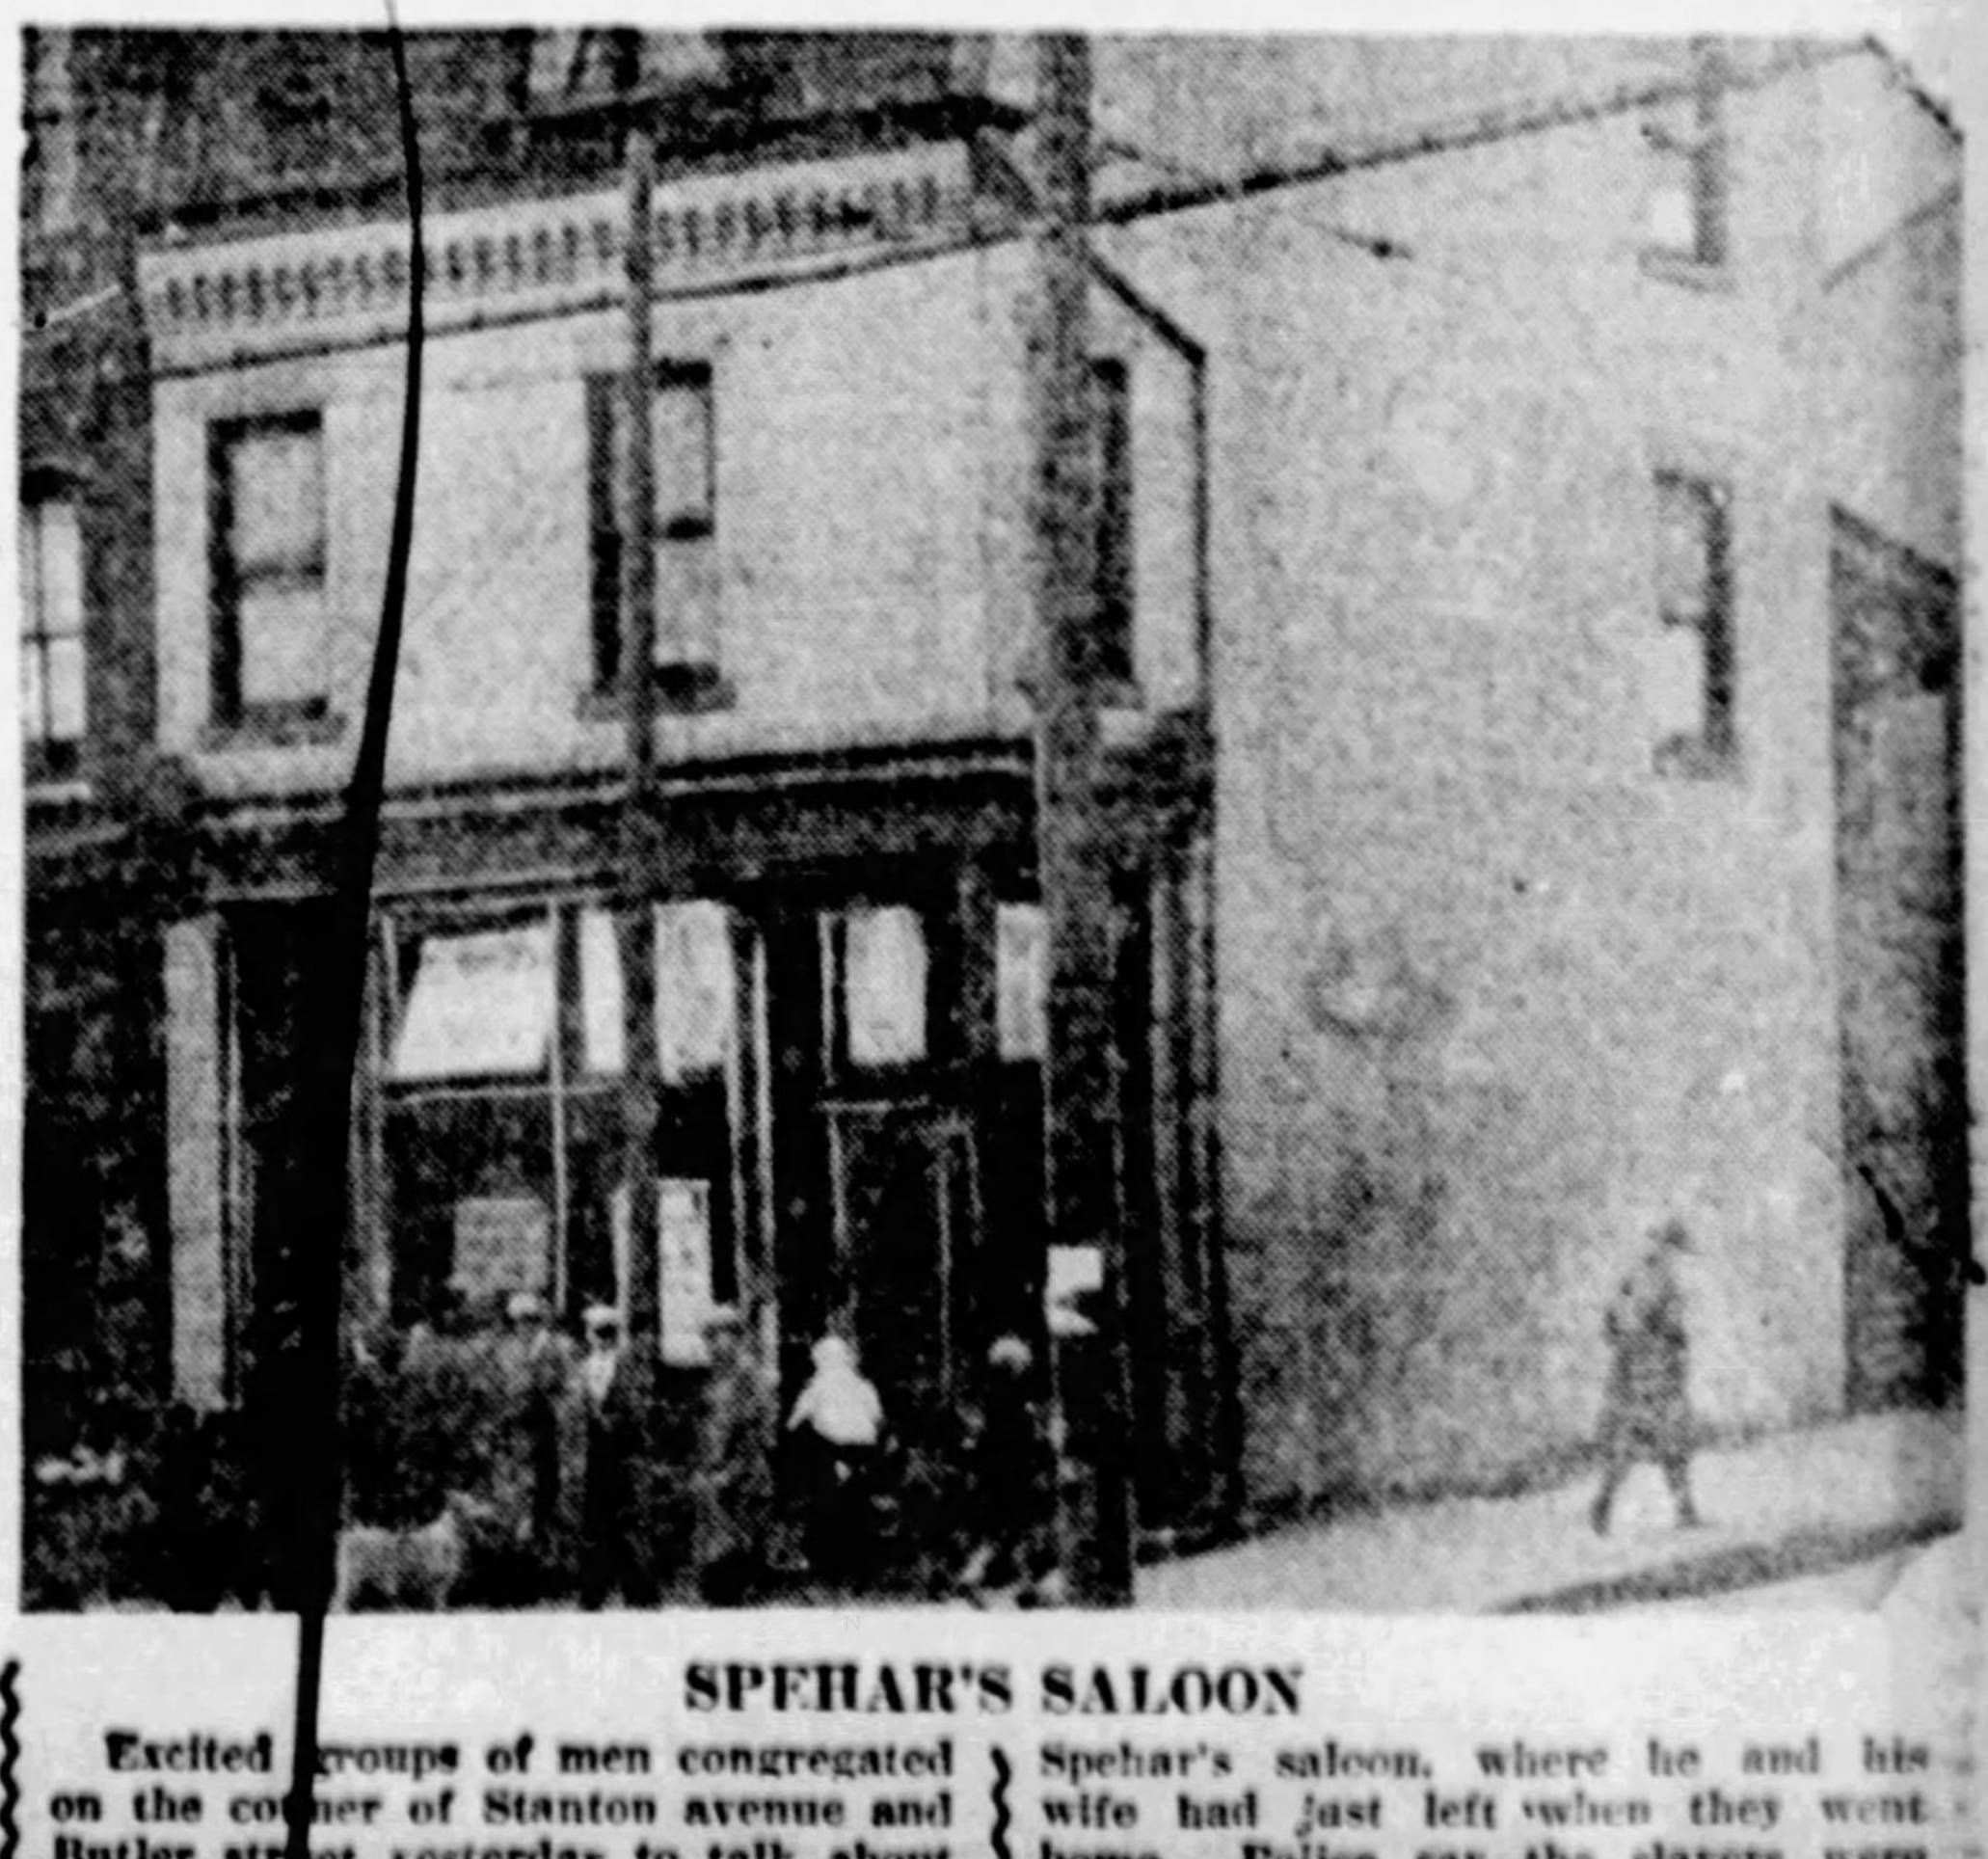
MYSTERY IN MURDER -:- OF SALOONIST KILLED -:- IN LAWRENCEVILLE

SCENE OF SHOOTING

Residence of John Spehar, 4520 Stanton avenue, who was shot down at the door of his garage while his wife, Mrs. Mary Spehar, 27, was forced to look on while one of the thugs held her in the couple's automobile. Robbery was the motive for the slaying, police say, but no effort was made to search Spehar's clothing, nor did the thugs demand anything of her, Mrs. Spehar told police.

GUARDIAN FAILED IN DUTY

Closeup of garage with vicious dog standing guard. The dog was here Saturday night, but this did not frighten the thugs who beat Spehar over the head with a pick handle and then shot him. Mrs. Spehar was dragged out of the machine and the slayers sped away in it.



SPEHAR'S SALOON

Excited groups of men congregated on the corner of Stanton avenue and Butler street yesterday to talk about the murder. The corner building is Spehar's saloon, where he and his wife had just left when they went home. Police say the slayers were seeking Spehar's Saturday's receipts.

POWDER EASING PAIN MAKES VET "DOPE" SELLER

BEGS FOR LONG TERM TO CURE HABIT

By WINIFRED BLACK.

WINIFRED BLACK

NEW YORK, March 5.—Dopey Dan is in jail.

They caught him the other night, selling "dope" down on the docks.

Strange fellow—Dopey Dan.

As white as a bleaching bone—thin as a man can be and still not be a skeleton—furtive, nervous, shivering—it is terrible to look at Dopey Dan.

It wouldn't be so bad if you'd never known him when he was different.

Eight years ago he was a handsome young fellow—up and coming—gay, and good-humored.

He came back from France with his regiment—but he couldn't march up Broadway with them.

They carried him ashore on a stretcher.

Gassed, shellshocked, one arm gone—but still gay and still ready to laugh.

He had a lot of friends and he didn't have to wait long to get a job. The minute he was able to be up and out, he went to work, but there was something wrong—he had a terrible pain in the chest, like a knife in his lungs, and one day he met a buddy in a cheap restaurant and the buddy had a pain in his lungs, too. But he knew a little white powder that would help you through the day, he said. And he gave one of the powders to Dan.

And Dan met him the next day and got another. And the next day. And took another and after that, Dan bought his own white powder. It eased his pain, and made him feel as if he had as good a chance in life as any other man.

In six months Dan lost his job.

In a year Dan was a hopeless wreck—drifting up and down the unfriendly town. The only thing he wanted was the white powder. As long as he had that he didn't care whether he had friends or food or any place to sleep or not.

And now he's a peddler—selling the "dope" to other fellows who need it just as he needed it.

He won't tell you his real name—he won't tell you where he used to live. But even his companionship with the scum of the earth cannot change the way he talks, and by that you can tell that he's been to college somewhere and at some time he had a mother and sisters who loved him and were proud of him.

When he was arrested, he cried in court, and begged the judge to send him away somewhere for a long time so he could "break the habit."

The judge was very severe with Dopey Dan.

"You know what this 'dope' has done to you," said the judge, "and yet here you are out selling it to other people just to get money enough to buy your own share."

"I know," said Dopey Dan. "I know." And he trembled, like a little boy who is ill and frightened and alone and doesn't know what to do about it.

Strange fellows, these "dope" peddlers.

There's an old Chinese down Salinas way in California. He has a laundry close by the highway and on Sundays and Saturday night it is odd to see the cars stopping at the broken down old laundry. Little flivvers, big limousines, and one day I saw there a farm truck with three ruddy farm boys in it.

They won't be ruddy long—not if they go to old Sam's place very often—for Sam is a "dope" peddler, too.

He's taught dozens of country boys to "snuff snow" and to take morphine.

Old Sam's customers don't bother much about hyperdermic syringes—they just take a safety pin and that's that.

Some of them are covered almost from head to heels with festering wounds—that's what the safety pin has done.

There's a smart young Japanese down Boston way. He's a "dope" peddler, too. Does a big business in the smart set, they say. Drives a big car, dresses in the very newest thing from Bond street. Sells to his own countrymen?—never think it—not for one moment! The Japanese are a very clever people—they sell "dope." They don't use it themselves.

This particular "dope" peddler knows the smart clubs in the college towns—if you follow him up and down the highway you will see quite a few good-looking young chaps who drive down the road to meet him.

Women Dope Sellers.

There are women "dope" peddlers, too. Some of them are old and haggard and broken. And some are young, and pretty and well-dressed.

They won't be pretty and well-dressed very long, because the women who sell "dope" are nearly always addicts themselves.

There's a pretty cabaret singer in New York who has a lot of regular customers.

Her looks are beginning to fade and the manager of the cabaret spoke to her the other night and asked her what was the matter with her voice. It gave her quite a start and she made up her mind she'd have to "get off the stuff" at once—but somehow she didn't. She's going to begin tomorrow, she says. She's going to forget she ever saw "dope" or heard of it. She's going to forget the cabaret, too, and go back home to the little town where her mother lives and begin all over again—tomorrow.

She's been saying that for about six weeks.

Choir Singer Sells.

There's a church choir singer in a Chicago suburban neighborhood—she sells "dope," too—has quite a little clientele of her own and goes in and out on the suburban train with a little shopping bag—why sholdn't she meet a friend or so on the train, and who notices what she takes out of the bag? And who cares what she does with her own "dope?"

She's a married woman, too. Her husband is away from home a good deal and hasn't the faintest idea that she is an addict and a peddler, too.

There's a colored man in a roadhouse near Detroit—they've known about him for a long time—the authorities—but somehow they never can catch him—he sells to his own people and to the white people, too.

There's a good-looking young fellow at an oil station in Southern California—right on the outskirts of Los Angeles. He's a "snow bird"—go to that station any time after 11 o'clock at night and you'll see him and a lot of other "snow birds" taking a sleigh ride—together.

Young—gay—foolish—poor boys! They are riding to degredation and shame—and death!—together.

Care Only for Snow.

They know it well enough—but they don't care.

"Snow birds" don't care for anything—but "snow."

No matter how ambitious or how hard-working or how honest they are when they begin—when they once get "on the snow" they're just "snow birds"—and that's all!

And when they can't get money enough to get plenty of "snow," they go out and rob someone, and they won't stop at murder, either.

What's the life of a man or a woman or a child to stand between a "snow bird" and his "snow?"

Don't make any mistake about it—there's a "dope" peddler in your neighborhood, some kind of a "dope" peddler—a man or a woman—a Mexican, a Japanese, a Chinese, a Negro or a white man—what's the difference as long as they have plenty of "happy dust" and plenty of "sleepy dust."

Porter Offers Relief.

Stephen Porter of Pennsylvania is going to bring his bill for addict farms up for discussion in the committee Wednesday or Thursday.

Why don't you telegraph to your congressman and tell him you're interested in that bill and would like to see it pass.

Get your club to telegraph him—it won't cost a nickel a piece if you divide the expense of the telegram between you, and you'll go on record as trying to do something to help in the fight this country must make to suppress this hideous traffic in disease, despair and death that is going on right at our very doorsteps.

WARDEN FINDS FISH TRAP CAUSING FINE

The fish trap which Ignace Pachulski, 32, of 1209 Main street, Sharpsburg, used in the Allegheny River and which caused him to be committed to jail for 30 days, yesterday was recovered from the river by W. C. Shaffer of Wilkinsburg, a state game warden. Pachulski was committed to jail Monday by Judge S. J. Snee of the County Court in default of a payment of a fine of $65 and costs of $97.85, following the court's refusal to sustain an appeal from the penalty imposed by Justice of the Peace J. A. Hernon of Sharpsburg.

BOY INJURED SLIGHTLY WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Running in front of an automobile near his home yesterday during the excitement of a snowball fight, Roy Fox, 10, of 333 Moore avenue, Overbrook, was injured. He was taken to the South Side Hospital, where it was said he had suffered body bruises. C. H. Hazlett of 24 Elm street, Overbrook, driver of the car, was not arrested.

FOIL KILLER'S SUICIDE

Chisholm admitting he "pushed" the boys into the canal. He stated his motive was that he had "too many mouths to feed."

The first body was found floating in the ship canal at Indiana Harbor on February 22; the second came to the surface and was recovered last Thursday. Saturday morning, Chisholm, a 36-year-old foundry worker at East Chicago, and Canadian World War veteran, was arrested and accused of the murders. After several hours' grilling he confessed.

Mrs. Helen Lawrence, mother of three children and Chisholm's "housekeeper," is also being held in connection with the crime. In his revised confession, Chisholm declared Mrs. Lawrence's nagging about his children drove him into murdering them, but he denied that she had any connection with the crime or even knew of its execution.

In the preamble of his first confession made to East Chicago police, Chisholm said:

"I came here from Montreal, Canada, four years ago and went to work in a foundry. I am married and the father of three children, George and Robert (twins), 9, and Edgar, 7. I have been separated from my wife four years. She is Ivy Reed Chisholm and lives in Suffolk, England.

"When I came here I left my children in Canada. In September, 1927, I went to Canada and brought them here. George and Edward always wanted to go back to their grandmothers. She is dead."

Then followed a story of how Chisholm took his boys to the canal bank and induced them to bind themselves and jump into the icy water. Later, after hours of grilling, he called for a pencil and wrote a new confession which authorities believe is substantially correct.

It was as strange a document as ever a father wrote. It calmly related how Chisholm lured the boys to their death with a promise that they were to see their grandmother. It pictured them going laughing to the canal in which he drowned them, playing cowboy on the way.

It told of the father's farewell kiss to them. It set forth he shoved one boy, with a steel rail wired to him to carry him below the surface, into the canal before he could cry out.

The other lad, it showed, realized in one brief instant, that he and his brother were being murdered, and screamed. His scream was stifled in the water as his weighted body followed the other youngster's.

Mrs. Lawrence, who has posed as Chisholm's wife, was exonerated completely in the man's confession, but is being held for further questioning. She is booked as a material witness with bond fixed at $1,000.

TWO FARMERS DEPOSIT BANKS TO MERGE

The Farmers Deposit Savings Bank soon will be merged with the Farmers Deposit National Bank, the parent institution, it was announced today. The savings bank will be continued with its present personnel, and in its present location, but as a department of the national bank. The combined institutions will have resources of more than $80,000,000 and deposits of about $60,000,000.

Enactment by Congress of the McFadden bill, broadening the powers of national banks, makes the separate operation of the two institutions unnecessary, it was said at the bank today. The merger will afford manifest advantages to the customers of both institutions.

In nearly 25 years of separate existence, the Farmers Deposit Savings Bank has enjoyed continuous growth. Its statement of last December 31, showed savings deposits of $12,480,000, making it one of the largest strictly savings institutions in the state. Established in 1902, with a capital of $100,000, its resources have grown until its capital and undivided profits are now more than $1,800,000.

The parent bank, the Farmers Deposit National, was founded in 1832, and in four years will celebrate its centennial. Its deposits at the December statement were more than $50,000,000, and its paid-in capital stock, surplus and undivided profits exceed $10,800,000.

Commenting upon the merger, Arthur E. Braun, president, said:

"The merger is being effected as a matter of convenience and increased efficiency in the service of customers of both institutions.

"Edward B. Coll, president of the savings bank, through years of its growth, will, as a vice president of the national bank, continue in charge of the savings department. To him in large measure has been due the remarkable success of the savings bank, and his continued presence at the same desk will be a pledge to the customers of the savings bank that the same policies and courtesies will prevail in the future that have marked the service in the past."

A meeting of stockholders to consider the plans of consolidation has been called for March 12. Ratification is said to be assured.

REINCARNATION EXPLAINED BY LECTURER

Lecturing on "Successive Lives" last night at Carnegie Lecture Hall, Schenley Park, L. W. Rogers, national president of the American Theosophical Society, said that the best reason to be given for the belief in reincarnation is that it is an inherently reasonable explanation of life and its purpose. He contended that the human being has an essentially divine nature since his origin is in God, Himself, and that his latent divine qualities are brought into activity through the process of gaining experience here in a physical body and after death transmuting the experience into wisdom and skill, after which he returns for further experience in another physical body.

He argued that if we have lived here many times before it is easy to account for the remarkable differences that exist among people at birth. The explanation, he argued, is not that God unjustly creates one brilliant and another stupid, but that through many past lives we have been either apathetic or energetic and that our intellect at present is precisely what our past striving has made it.

Mr. Rogers will lecture this evening at the Carnegie Lecture Hall at 8:15 on "Spiritual Problems." The lectures are under the auspices of the Pittsburgh lodge, Theosophical Society, and no charge will be made for admission.

FIRE DRIVES 26 CLUB MEMBERS TO STREET

Burning paper decorations in the Good Fellowship Club at 1118 Warlo street, drove 26 members to the street yesterday morning and damaged the club rooms $1,000, it was estimated. It is believed a lighted cigaret had been tossed among the decorations, causing the fire. The damage was estimated by Battalion Chief Daniel Jones.

Grandmother finds way to grow old gracefully

"I don't try to keep up the pace of the younger generation," says this 65-year-old woman. "I leave that to my grandchildren.

"But just because I lead a quiet life doesn't mean that I'm not perfectly well. I never felt better. Everything about me is normal and functions as it should. I make sure of that by taking Nujol regularly. Nujol keeps me in good condition."

When people become less active, Nujol becomes even more important for good health. For Nujol not only prevents the excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal.

All of us—old and young alike—lead more or less sedentary lives. But Nujol helps make up for this lack of exercise. It keeps the body functioning as Nature intended.

Even if you think you're perfectly well, try Nujol. It was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Take it for three months and just see if you don't feel better. Nujol can't possibly upset you. It contains absolutely no drugs or medicine. Be sure you get the genuine.

MERCURY DOWN NEAR RECORD MAR. 5 LOW

The mercury fell to 15 at 6 o'clock this morning, within five degrees of the record low temperature for this date established in 1901, remained stationary for three hours, then began a slow rise.

Snow flurries which greeted Pittsburghers as they faced the stinging cold on their way to work this morning later gave way to clear skies and a prospect of moderation late today. Fair weather with slowly rising temperature tomorrow is expected to break the March frigid spell.

A balmy afternoon yesterday was turned into a blizzard when dark clouds hid the sun, and rain which began falling was quickly changed to snow by a high wind sweeping from the northwest. Before the thermometer halted in its downward course this morning, a drop of 31 degrees had been recorded.

ROBBERS MISS $250 HAUL

Two holdup men who entered the P. H. Butler store, Union and Franklin avenues, Wilkinsburg, Saturday night, passed a collector for the company as he was leaving after emptying the cash register of the day's receipts, approximately $250. The robbers got $12 that had been left in the register, after they had forced Miss Mathilda Doerflinger, the store manager, to the rear of the store. Martha Doerflinger, a sister, and a customer, also were forced back with the manager.

Two apartments at 6929 Meade street were ransacked by a robber who entered by breaking glass in front doors. The apartments of Mrs. Martha Hed[illegible] and Mrs. Harry Moore were entered and loot obtained in each place. Nineteen dollars was stolen from the apartment of Mrs. R. B. Kinsey at Bayard and Melwood streets. The thief used a key to open the door and the apartment had been ransacked.

MINER HELD AS RUM PEDDLER

Charles H. Taylor, striking Bruceton miner, took to peddling booze among the strikebreakers at No. 4 mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, it was testified before a United States commissioner today. Taylor was held in $500 bail for court.

According to Ashley Winans, coal and iron policeman, and C. P. McQuiston, watchman for the Terminal Coal Corporation, Taylor took an order from a Negro residing in house No. 69 in the "Patch" and called Saturday night to deliver five gallons of liquor.

Taylor is said to have resided in the United Mine Workers' barracks at Lick Run since the strike has been in effect.

How Horne's Has Adopted

The Coat Mode for Spring

The women's coat section has deduced the following, concerning dressy coats for spring, and the results of this reasoning, as summarized below, are evident in the showings which are so interesting now.

The silhouette is simple, whether the coat be in straightline or coat style, therefore the fabrics must be beautifully fine, the furs of first quality, and the finishing details intricate and executed by skillful hands.

Black coats with light-colored furs—white, gray or beige—are so very effective, and permit them to be worn with dresses in the fashionable neutral shades.

Coats in beige shades are equally smart—with fur collars, with fur cuffs only, or unfurred.

Prices in this section are $59.50 to $200.

Have You Seen the New Cartwright Art Frocks?

"Lovelier than ever," say women, speaking of the spring models—women who have been familiar with this exclusive line of dresses ever since they were introduced to Pittsburgh and confined to our Sportswear Shop.

These new models are of the fine, new tussah silk, silk crepes and wool georgette, with the subtlety of coloring which marks spring fashions; also, there are three-piece ensembles of wool jersey. Their Scandanavian handembriodery shows new designs.

Women's and misses' models, $49.50 to $100.00.

FUGITIVE LEARNS HE'S CLEARED

HEARS OTHERS HAD ADMITTED CRIME

ROCKFORD, Ill., March 5—(AP.)—A man under sentence of life imprisonment for murder sat in a plainly furnished third floor room of a New Orleans rooming house, hiding from the law.

In the same building, on another floor, was his young wife, cooking his supper to take to him.

The man was Henry Olson, Rockford automobile mechanic, convicted of slaying Floyd Stotler in an oil station holdup last September. At liberty pending appeal for a new trial, he had fled with his wife, forfeiting his bond.

It was last Wednesday night. Mrs. Olson had prepared his supper. Outside, a newsboy was shouting the late editions. Mrs. Olson bought one, placed it on the tray with the food, and carried it to her husband's room.

LEARNS GOOD NEWS

Idly, Henry Olson smoothed the paper before him. His glance wandered nervously over the page. Suddenly he stiffened, transfixed by these words which leaped out at him from under a Rockford, Ill., date line:

"Henry Olson, wherever you are, read this!"

Quickly, his eyes drank in the words.

"Convicted of slaying Floyd Stotler, and sentenced to life imprisonment, you jumped your appeal bond, didn't you," went on the Associated Press account.

"But you may come back now, Henry Olson! That life sentence though it still hangs over you, is not likely to be enforced."

By this time Mrs. Olson was leaning over his shoulder, reading with him. They read that George Bliss and Morris Mahan, 17-year-olds boys, had been arrested and that police said the boys had confessed to the crime for which Olson himself had been convicted. They read that Olson's attorney, convinced of his client's innocence, had pursued clues which led to the Bliss and Mahan arrests.

LEARNS OTHERS HAD ADMITTED CRIME

"You think it is too good to be true?" concluded the newspaper story, which had been written throughout in the second person. "You are wrong. It is true. Come home, Henry Olson, and see."

BACK IN ROCKFORD

The Olsons were back in Rockford today. The sentence of life imprisonment remained over the 26-year-old mechanic, but its fangs had been removed. After the arraignment of Bliss and Mahan today, provided there was no hitch, Olson's attorney was ready to move quickly to free his client.

Over the wires, to the corners of the nation, a news story had gone. Henry Olson had read it, and from the cold type of that New Orleans newspaper there had been born for a man and a woman the promise of a new and great happiness.

Old Sores and Ulcers Can Be Healed!

Many a person has succeeded in healing stubborn old sores and ulcers with applications of Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had utterly failed.

Here is a letter well worth reading and if you have a friend afflicted the same, why not send him this?

"About a year ago I contracted 15 varicose ulcers on my arm which rapidly grew worse. They extended up my whole arm, one-half inch deep. I used several salves, but instead of making my arm better they made it worse. Blood poisoning nearly set in. Doctors told me I would have to have my arm amputated. Finally I read about your Peterson's Ointment in the newspapers and began to use it. After several boxes I began to see an improvement, and within a short time the ulcers were entirely closed up and healed. I am glad to say a good word for Peterson's Ointment and you can refer to me any time."—Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nearly every druggist recommends Peterson's Ointment and you can get a good-sized box for only 35 cents.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Plans for Post-Easter Weddings Brighten Drab Period

TO THE casual observer the social life in Pittsburgh during the Lenten season may seem extremely drab, but those who have decided to stay here for the remainder of the winter certainly don't look a bit bored. And no wonder. For they have their concerts, their clubs, their philanthropies, their informal affairs, and most exciting of all, their plans. Really planning a [illegible] at least half the excitement in life, don't you think? And when one is planning a wedding, who could be bored?

As usual there are going to be a number of important weddings right after Easter Sunday, which is early, have you realized, this year?

In addition to the post-Easter wedding dates already announced, there is a new, and a very important one, too. Frances Burdick, daughter of the Julian Burdicks of Von Lent place, has chosen Thursday, April 12, as the date for her marriage to Charles Cromwell, Jr., of Baltimore. Their engagement was announced, you'll recall, early in January.

Elisabeth Wightman Mellon, daughter of the Thomas A. Mellons of North Negley avenue, has also named an April date, as you know, for her marriage to John B. Sellers, son of Mrs. Henry D. Sellers, of Westminster place, April 28.

Perhaps you might think that it's rather soon to be making plans for an April wedding, but some girls are already settling details of their weddings planned for the traditional month of June.

Attractive Katharine Modisette Marsh, daughter of the Joseph W. Marshes of "Llanfair Lodge," Woodland road, has named Saturday, June 16, for her marriage to William Clarke Fuelhart, son of the William O. Fuelharts of Endeavor, Pa. Katharine's parents announced her engagement not long ago, just before the family went to Ormond Beach. Katharine, by the way, has won quite a reputation down south as a golf player. Evidently at Wellesley she did not devote herself to the academic life to the exclusion of this popular sport.

Sunday is really an ideal day on which to entertain one's friends simply and to indulge in lengthy conversations, for which there is so little time during the busy week days. Perhaps these very sentiments led the Morgan B. Schillers of Sewickley Heights to entertain at a buffet luncheon in their home yesterday.

With the hint of spring in the northern air, many of those who emigrated to the South for the winter are beginning to return home. The W. E. Fricks and Mrs. William Ward Frick of Sewickley are expected to return soon from that pleasant winter resort, Augusta, Ga.

Nowadays one just can't talk very long about society without mentioning Palm Beach. And now that we are again on the subject of Palm Beach, there isn't a more popular Pittsburgh matron at the winter society colony than Mrs. Henry R. Rea. She is either hostess or guest at just about every event given. She was among the guests at a luncheon the Edward T. Stotesburys, of Philadelphia, gave Saturday in their home, "El Mirasol," for the Hon. Mrs. Ronald Greville, of London.

The Willis Shooks, of Sewickley, have just returned from a European sojourn, but they are already planning to spend the spring and summer in Egypt, Arabia, Persia and India. Mr. Shook, who is interested in writing and the fine arts, has lectured before many art clubs since his return on the work being done in the different European countries.

Guest critics from the Twentieth Century Club, Drama League and Authors' Club heard "The Adventurer," a three-act play written by Margaret Wooldridge and Katheryn Watkins, juniors at the Pennsylvania College for Women, at a special reading given Saturday night in Berry Hall. The authors were introduced by Miss Grace Croff, under whose direction the play was written, and Miss Vanda Kerst read the manuscript. The play will be produced March 16 and 17 by the English department, the final performance to be an invitation affair only.

Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Clark of the Emerson apartments returned home last week after spending two months in Florida.

The first in a series of dinner dances for the service colony of Pittsburgh, sponsored by Col. Edward T. Hartmann, U. S. Infantry, and Mrs. Hartmann, was held Friday night in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Covers were laid for 50. The committee in charge included Col. Robert M. Brambilla, Capt. Fred A. McMahon and Lieut. Thomas J. Kelly.

Women of the senior class of the Carnegie Institute of Technology will hold their annual ball Friday night in the William Penn Hotel. Miss Elisabeth Burkhouse, president of the senior class of the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, will lead the grand march, and sponsoring the affair are Miss Mary B. Breed, Glendinning Keeble, Miss Mary Watson Green, Miss Edith Winchester and Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Kirkpatrick. Miss Hannah Eastman is chairman for the dance, assisted by Miss Lucille Galmish, Miss Adele Hahn, Miss Doris Purdum, Miss Evelyn Offutt, Miss Betty Hayes, Miss Alice McInnis, Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Betty Calvin, Miss Virginia Rose and Miss Mary McGuire.

The date for the voting machine demonstration under auspices of the Logan Parent-Teacher Association has been changed to March 15 and will be held in the Greenfield school auditorium. Mrs. Lulu Mosby will give the demonstration and talk.

The Temple Auxiliary Association will hold a card party Thursday afternoon in Gimbel's. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, general chairman; Mrs. Lucy Lyons, Mrs. Marcia Apel, Mrs. Carrie Criswell and Mrs. Dora Smith. The regular monthly meeting of the auxiliary will be held at the Hotel Henry Saturday.

The social committee of the Young People's Society of the First Methodist Protestant Church will hold a St. Patrick's Day supper followed by an entertainment March 14 in the church, Aiken avenue and Howe street. Mrs. T. Ray McLain, Jr., is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. West, of Squirrel Hill avenue have as their house guest Dr. C. Emmet Rose, superintendent of public schools in Tucson, Ariz. Dr. Rose is on his way home from the National Educators' convention in Boston.

Mrs. Walter R. Hine, formerly of this city, has returned to her apartment, the Barclay, New York, where she is convalescing, I hear, from a recent illness.

Harris and Mrs. J. O. Miller will speak and the voting machine will be demonstrated. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Motz will speak on "The Presidential Possibilities" before the Avalon league tonight, again before the Stowe township members Thursday when they will gather in the high school building, and at the Nineteenth Ward meeting, which will be in the County League headquarters.

The play, "An Old Maids' Convention," will be a part of the Penn township program, which will also include a talk by Mrs. Motz. Mrs. Robert Provost is to be chairman for the Friday meeting of the Oakdale unit, which will be addressed by Mrs. Motz.

Events scheduled at Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association include a talk to be given by Dr. Max Schoen, of Carnegie Tech, on "Work as a Fine Art." This will be given Thursday night in the "Undiscovered You" series, Dr. Schoen presenting the psychology of one's attitude towards life and work. Mrs. Florence Fisher

Only by favor of your enthusiastic approval could we do it. Your number has now grown to a point where we can give you an even bigger, better and more beautiful Delineator for the price you would pay for an ordinary woman's magazine.

What woman will ever be content with commonplace mediocrity when once she has known the inspiration of Delineator's taste and beauty?

On sale at all newsstands and in stores of progressive merchants who have Butterick departments.

..and KATHLEEN NORRIS'S Great New SERIAL

"STORM HOUSE"

Starts In This Issue

At the new 10-cent price Delineator will not last long on the newsstands! Make sure that you do not miss the first thrilling chapters of this exquisite new love story by America's best-loved author.

CONINGSBY DAWSON

One of Delineator's most popular authors surpasses himself in Pilgrims of the Impossible—a poignant drama woven around an earnest divinity student, a charming but weak would-be playwright, and a bewilderingly lovely actress.

DOROTHY CANFIELD

In Deep Channel the versatile Dorothy Canfield has written an unusually moving story of a young minister's struggle to find a true course amid the uncharted shoals of life.

ARTHUR TRAIN

This brilliant author, with his uncanny insight into the hearts of modern men and women, tells in Simon Kent an absorbing story of unselfish love in conflict with ruthless ambition.

AND MANY OTHER FAMOUS AUTHORS

In succeeding issues will appear many other fascinating serials, short stories and articles by such famous authors as Edith Wharton, Elizabeth, Countess Russell, Louis Joseph Vance, Albert Payson Terhune, Mrs. William Laimbeer, Jessica G. Cosgrave, Frances Parkinson Keyes, Mrs. John Alexander King, Celia Caroline Cole and many others.

NEVER in the history of publishing has there been offered at any price a magazine that covers the field of women's interests so completely, or in so thoroughly practical a way as Delineator does today.

If we find, for instance, that large numbers of Delineator readers are interested in the young girl's bedroom—presto! Delineator builds, decorates and furnishes a real room that is complete in every lovely little detail—such a room as any girl might dream of owning—yet practical in use and reasonable in cost.

DELINEATOR HOME INSTITUTE

Mildred Maddocks Bentley, Director

Is it fashions? Delineator's fashions are by Butterick, style authority of the world—the best of the newest modes made practical, and feasible in cost. Thus is the art of gracious living brought within the average family's means. So it goes from bedroom to kitchen, from silver to china, from floor-waxer to kitchen range. Every detail of Delineator's service carries the seal of authority and the sanction of practical proof.

SEWING SERVICES

Consulting Dressmaker

Throughout the city women who do their own sewing are discussing the wonderful help they receive in planning and making their clothes under the direction of the Boggs & Buhl Dressmaker. No other service quite like it. At a minor charge you can have dresses cut, assembled and pin fitted so that you have merely to sew them together. Ask to see garments, as the consulting dressmaker finishes them — you will be amazed that so much is done for so little.

—1st Floor—

Made Up Models

In the various piece goods departments, model dresses are displayed. They were made in the Boggs & Buhl Dressmaking classes and serve as example of the splendid work being done. Each dress is ticketed with its pattern number, and the amount and cost of the yard goods used. Any dress can be duplicated either by the consulting dressmaker service or by enrolling for a course of lessons in the Dressmaking Classes.

Dressmaking Classes

Practically every woman who enrolls for a course of six lessons in the Dressmaking Classes is able to make three dresses — some more experienced sewers make four and five! All fittings are made by the instructors who are thoroughly experienced dressmakers; all cutting is done under their supervision. Lesson hours at your convenience; as many appointments each week as you desire. The only dressmaking school of its kind that we know of anywhere in the country. Course of six lessons —$10.

Get That Kruschen Feeling

Emil Ludwig, Biographer From Germany, Lured to Hollywood To Compose Piece for Movies

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 5.

RICARDO CORTEZ, hardly had time to wash the train grime off his face before he was called on the telephone by Tiffany-Stahl to be the chief male reason in "Ladies of the Night Club," an original story by a youngster with the name of Ben Grauman Kohn.

Ricky Cortez and Alma Rubens are just back from a trip abroad, where Ricky starred in several foreign-made films, while Alma permitted herself the luxury of a well deserved vacation.

There is no doubt that Victor Watson, publisher of the New York Mirror, will read of Ben Grauman Kohn's achievement with a chuckle of amusement. Young Kohn came to him, imbued with the desire to be another Arthur Brisbane, and Mr. Watson put the boy to work. He turned out several stories that were not only readable but showed some little originality.

Then came the Hollywood urge—and Ben Grauman Kohn, following Horace Greeley's advice, came West. I have never been able to discover whether the Grauman is a real name or a tacked-on, because of some admiration for the redoubtable Sid.

Barbara Leonard, Tiffany-Stahl's most recent discovery, makes her debut as Mr. Cortez's leading lady and George Archainbaud will wield the megaphone.

The most famous biagrapher of the age, Emil Ludwig, is coming into the movies. The man who wrote such a fascinating story of Napoleon and such a delightful interesting tale of the life of the great Bismarck will develop a biography for Famous Players-Lasky. No less a person than Jesse Lasky tells us this. Mr. Ludwig's specialty is biography and a colorful life of a colorful personage, whether historical or modern, should go just as well in the movies as in fiction. I shall be curious to know whose life Mr. Ludwig elects to write for the films. He is coming to Hollywood, now the mecca of the world's celebrities, to see the movies first hand before he does any writing. Emil Jannings, who did so well as Henry VIII and then later as Peter the Great, is my choice for Mr. Ludwig's movie biography.

Marion Davies, hard at work on "Polly Preferred," is looking ahead to the future. In other words, Marion knows the name of her next picture and the director. "Her Cardboard Lover," Jeanne Eagles' well-known play, will follow "Polly Preferred." Robert Leonard will direct. "Her Cardboard Lover" has long been in Marion's mind. She liked the play when she saw it in New York and she saw screen possibilities in it. Fortunately for her, Louis B. Mayer agreed with he, so the play was purchased. I don't support we ought to spend too much time discussing "Her Cardboard Lover" while "Polly Preferred" is still in the making.

The literary husband of Dolores Del Rio, Jaime Del Rio, who went to New York to live his own life, is returning to Hollywood. Mr. Del Rio, at the time he left his actress wife, stated that he was tired of being Mr. Dolores Del Rio. He wanted to retain his own individuality. There were rumors of a divorce—there are still rumors that the case may eventually reach the courts, although the little Mexican actress is very discreet in her silence.

If Norma Talmadge cannot understand Russian she is out of luck. Joseph Schenck has surrounded her with an 85 per cent Russian cast in "A Woman Disputed." The other 15 per cent, who speak the American language without an accent, are Gilbert Roland, her leading man, and Marion Templeton, who plays an important role. The Russians are Boris Degas, Michael Vavitch, Michael Visaroff, General Lodijinsky, Blazoi and Savitzki. I refuse to be responsible for the spelling of these names. There are two more, but the typewriter rebelled so I have to leave them out. Anyway, I admit I can't spell them. "A Woman Disputed," final and last call, goes into production March 12.

Society Woman, Novice, Wins Art Prize

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Mrs. Lee Smith Jerrms, prominent socially here, finds time to win prizes for her paintings. She has been painting only a short time, her actual studies having been begun four years ago.

Yesterday Mrs. Jerrms was the winner of the Chicago Woman's Aid Society prize for a painting, called "Luniria," a study of a small bowl of flowers, a vase and a china elephant. It will be hung with the municipal art collection.

UNITED STATES EDITORS IN MEXICO FOR WEEK

MEXICO CITY, March 5.—One hundred and eight editors from the midwest of the United States arrived in Mexico City Sunday for a week's visit. High government officials met the excursionists at the depot. During their stay here, the editors will be lavishly entertained. A special bullfight is included among the events arranged.

CONFISCATE STILL IN ROSS TOWNSHIP RAID

SALVATION ARMY MAN AND WIFE DUEL TO DEATH

WIELD KNIVES, ICE PICKS AND GUN

Butcher knives, ice picks and a revolver were weapons used in a duel to death between John Faulds, 61, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Faulds, 48, Salvation Army workers. The dramatic fight occurred late Saturday night in the darkened kitchen of their home, 321 Cherry street, West Homestead.

Mrs. Faulds was dead when police summoned by her son, Edwin, 10, broke into the place. The husband, stepfather of the boy, died several hours later in the Homestead Hospital.

The woman had been shot through the chest and Faulds was staggering about with a butcher knife buried in his chest when police reached the scene.

The quarrel, which ended in the double killing, began, according to the boy, when his mother resented an effort by Faulds to discipline his stepson. Faulds had been drinking and had slapped him, Edwin told police.

The Faulds had quarreled frequently, neighbors, who are caring for Mrs. Faulds' several children by a former marriage, told police and detectives.

MRS. HOLLAND SUES BEAUTY FOR BALM

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

Man Substituted Nose for Scent Organ of Nature

Profound Changes in Method Of Finding His Mate Is a Consequence

The Leydig cells that hold the key to the door of sex life were the subject of Dr. Dorsey's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" published in the great Sunday Sun-Telegraph yesterday. Rejuvenation by gland transference is a biological futility, is one conclusion drawn from the advanced studies and experiments that have been made.

Short People Mature First

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE race of bisexual animals depends on the coming together of male and female. Moths find their mates by their olfactory antannae; fishes, by color and behavior; frogs, by voice and touch; birds, by voice and sight; mammals, by scent.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

Man is a mammal, but he has traded his scent organ for a nose and he kills his odor with soaps or artificial scents. He discovers his mate, as do birds, by voice and sight.

Either sex, deprived of the gonads, has no need for secondary characters; nor do they appear unless the gonads function as endocrine or "puberty" glands. That is the business of the hormones of the gonads: so to catalyze developing structure that the two sexes already determined in prenatal development will not look or sound alike, but will look and sound good to each other.

Secondary sex characters, therefore, are additional devices of nature for making each sex easily recognized by and more attractive to the opposite sex. Hence the "instinctive" repugnance of normal men for "manly" women; of normal women for "womanly" men.

Puberty means sexual maturity; the individual is ready to assume the next stage in normal development: parentage. Modern life departs from the normal, it pays no attention to the facts of puberty. The age of marriage tends to become more and more remote from sex maturity; the education of the youth proceeds as though there were no such thing as puberty.

Time of Change

In normal life in girls, as in the females of all mammals, the milk glands at puberty take on rapid growth. The most noticeable changes in the boy are the appearance of hair on the face and a startling change in the growth of the cartilages and vocal cords of the larynx. The voice at first breaks; by the time it becomes normal again it has, as a rule, dropped one full octave. Meanwhile the boy outgrows his collars faster than he does his hats.

While early growth depends on the amount and nature of the food and on general hygienic conditions, puberty as a rule appears earliest in individuals of short stature. Thus it comes earlier among Italians than Scandinavians, the difference agreeing with the relative statures of the two peoples.

Girls of European descent grow faster than boys between the ages of 10 and 15. Between 11 and 14 the girls are actually taller; between 12 and 15, heavier. At 15 the rate of the girl's growth begins to diminish. The skeleton begins to mature, for both sexes, at puberty. The girl's pelvic girdle undergoes a marked change in width. She also becomes more plump.

A New Order

Between the fourteenth and eighteenth years for girls, and between the fifteenth and twentieth years for boys, a new impulse enters life. This impulse, only vaguely present before, is now the impelling force. For this reason: puberty means more than mere physical change, it means sex maturity; it is a result as well as an event. Besides the physical changes which increased the demands for food-energy, the whole organism is involved in maturity.

The boy or girl is now preoccupied with a new order of internal affairs. This necessarily involves the entire nervous mechanism—not in its structure, but in the nature of the situations to which it must now adjust the individual. The second great crisis in life is at hand. It is a different individual, the world itself is different.

Up till now the primordial instinct of self-preservation has had only one main drive: food-hunger; to this is now added the drive of mate-hunger. It enters the race fresh and will have its say. The body itself, under both direct and indirect influence of the sex mechanism, is stirred to its depths. The inhibitory centers in the spinal cord are lowered; the susceptibility of the brain is increased through the vasomotor nerves.

Problems Solved

The outcome of the conflict is determined by many factors. In animal life and the majority of the human race the result is courtship and mating. We generally solve the problem satisfactorily, but promiscuity and certain unbiologic and unsocial habits, with sex complexes leading to neuroses, seem to be increasing.

But the real point in all this is that the gonads normally do function as endocrine glands. As a consequence the two sexes do differ, in bodily structure, in behavior, in organic necessity. As Ellis puts it. "A man is a man to his very thumbs and a woman is a woman down to her little toes."

Specialization in bodies is older than civilization, and there has always been a real difference between men and women beyond that of the primary sex organs. Which prompts Keith to remark: "No legislation can blot out structural differences that have taken geological epochs to produce."

But substitution of gonads can, in fact, Riddle cites two cases of female birds that laid eggs and were in all respects true females; they ceased to be females, bcame males in form and function and fathered young. No surgical operation involved: only destruction of female organs due to tuberculosis; male organs replaced them, followed by male behavior. What all this signifies is not yet known. But this much, at least: sexual characters depend on sex hormones; complete sex-transformation in adults is possible.

WOULD PUT LOBBYISTS IN JAIL

WASHINGTON, March 5. (AP.)—A prison sentence for former members of Congress engaging in lobbying within two years from the date of their retirement from the Senate or House was asked in a bill drafted for introduction today by Representative Howard, (Dem.), Nebraska.

"I feel that if we can send a few ex-member lobbyists to the penitentiary," he said, "the effect might serve to make less offensive to the nose of common decency, and less damaging to the public welfare, the practices of those predatory interests which employ ex-members of the Congress."

Howard said he regarded his plan as "responsive to an aroused an indignant public sentiment over the late activities of a powerful lobby, marshaled by a former member of the United States Senate, for the defeat of pending legislation looking to the investigation of certain great combines of wealth invested in public utilities."

A bill to require lobbyists to register already has been passed by the Senate.

EXPECT DEPORTATION MOVE TO BE DROPPED

By International News Service

DETROIT, March 5.—An assured future with Mrs. Myron Boyer, the only mother he has ever known, was indicated today for 4-year-old Joseph Andrew Boyer, disowned "heir" to the Burroughs Adding Machine Company millions.

John L. Zurbrick, district inspector of immigration, declared that if Mrs. Boyer appeared at his office, an arrangement giving her custody of the child, in this country, probably could be entered into.

Mrs. Boyer obtained the boy from an unwed chambermaid in a Windsor, Ont., hotel and pretended he was her own. Her deception became public when Myron L. Boyer, son of Joseph Boyer, chairman of the board of directors of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company started suit in Lansing to have the records of the boy's birth as his son expunged. Mrs. Boyer admitted she passed the child off as her own "in an effort to preserve the Boyer home." Her husband, she said, was breaking away from home life because a child had not been born to them. The child hitherto had passed as Myron Boyer's son and had been named heir to a $5,000,000 trust created by Joseph Boyer.

Zurbrick stated he would ask Mrs. Boyer to return with the boy to Windsor and obtain a visa from the American consul that she might bring him back to this country legally.

The immigration angle developed over the fact the child was born in Canada of Canadian parents.

Authorities have been unable to locate Mrs. Boyer since she left her Royal Oak home last Friday. Her husband is out of town, and so is Joseph Boyer, multi-millionaire head of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company and "grandfather" of the boy.

Humming On Good Schools, Says Will

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 5.—Say Alabama is sure humming on good schools. That one in Auburn will compare with anybody's university, and coming over here I spent the morning at Tuskegee, that living monument to Booker T. Washington. They have a great idea there that some of our schools are copying.

WILL ROGERS.

They teach the pupils that they are going to have to work and how to work. Our old mode of college education, was teach 'em so they think they won't have to work. And singing: Oh, Boy, after hearing 1,500 of those Negro spirituals, I feel I will shoot the next white person that I hear try to sing one.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

A FRIEND'S appearance in the restaurant was the signal for the pleasant waitress in the P. and L. E. restaurant to reminisce over what, the ensuing conversation developed, was a sort of dream restaurant in an earlier period. The restaurant was located in Sixth street, now known as Federal street.

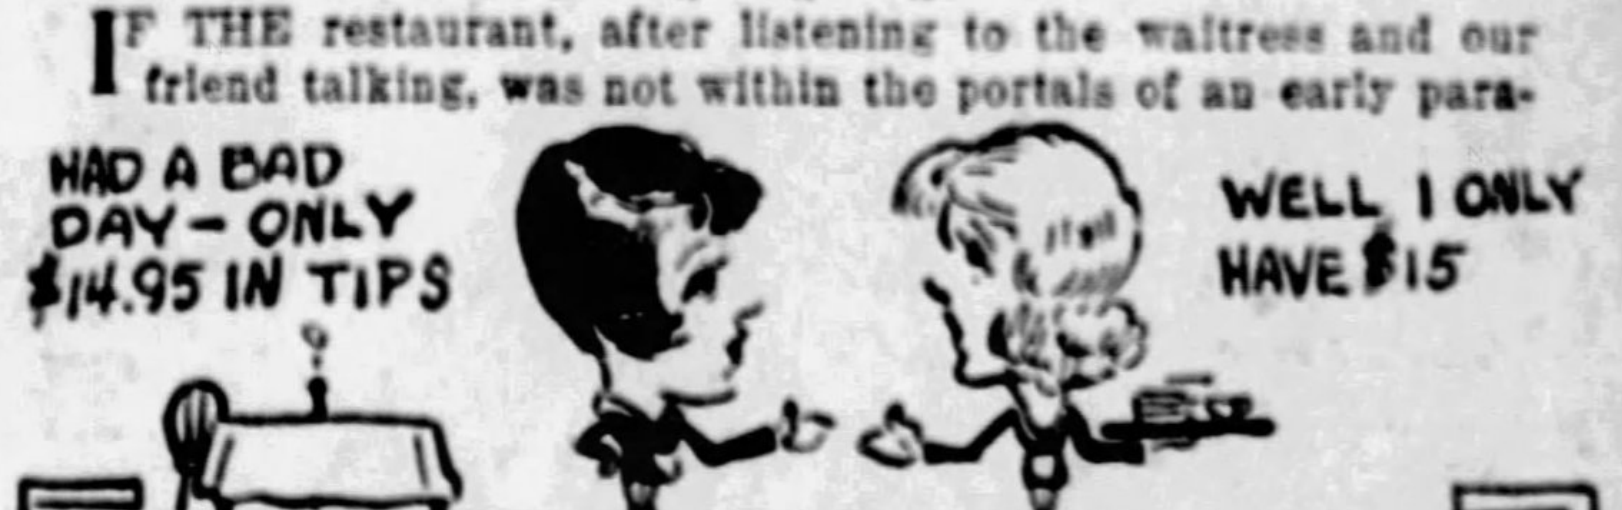
IF THE restaurant, after listening to the waitress and our friend talking, was not within the portals of an early paradise, then it certainly was quite close to the threshold. For it was a lean day, indeed, that did not yield from $12 to $15 in tips.



HAD A BAD DAY—ONLY $14.95 IN TIPS
WELL I ONLY HAVE $15

ONE of the bosses was a man who liked to gamble. He belonged to that glorified class of gamblers which history says will, upon seeing two flies at a sugar bowl, wager any amount from $1,000 to $50,000 which fly will fly away first and you can take your choice.

ONE time, we gathered as we listened, this particular boss was so unlucky that he was forced to send a messenger to the restaurant to clean out the cash register so that he might properly "fade" a gentleman who had what the boys called a hot hand.

OF COURSE, other gamblers visited the place, too, and the stories of losings and winnings made the hearts of the poor waitresses who were only making from $12 to $15 a day go pit-apat. For instance, the night the Pittsburghers came in to order a big feed after what might be jokingly called a strong killing—will that ever be forgotten? Do you know what he had won that day shooting crap? Nothing less, as you live, but a carload of onions—and he didn't know what to do with them. He was a man not as opposed to the much-criticized but honest onions as some narrow-minded people, but after all a carload of them was something he couldn't accommodate easily.

Another evening, so the conversation ran on, one of the big-time gamblers was going to throw a big dinner party for a group of the waitresses. The girls, of course, spent enough money for a new dress, shoes and hat to pay for a pretty swell dinner themselves, but this dinner was to be on the boy who was fixed fairy well. But on his way to the dinner-place with the girls he ran across a crap game and after begging to be excused a moment got into the game and what did he do but lose all his money, dinner money and everything. Lordy, those were the times.

SORRY GIRLS, BUT I LOST MY MONEY CAN YOU BEAT THAT ?

WHERE are most of the boys now? Well, they show up from time to time. So and so has grown pretty fat. So and So hasn't a dime—after what he had once. Another one managed to save a house anyway. My, my that was a crowd for you! And there were days when the waitresses, so heavily burdened were they with tips, that drawing the salary, small in comparison, was nothing but a rare old joke. And the fun, too, thrown in.

THE social writers who used to make of the waitresses examples of an economic system certainly would have got a new idea if they had heard the story that was spun in fewer minutes than it takes to read here.

SOMEHOW as we listened we thought we saw the shade of Mr. Sydney Porter, better known as O. Henry, walking into the restaurant—to come back to get new matrial for a new series in Valhalla.

JERRY

The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait

by Elenore MEHERIN

Saxon's Uncle Came in the Office Just as Saxon Was Kissing Jerry

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good-looking, charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her fascinating mother, Marza, warns her that idealists like Saxon make unsatisfactory husbands. In spite of the fact that Jerry sees Saxon kissing Tess Willi, who has a great deal of money, she still clings to her ideal and refuses a marriage proposal from Heine Ross, a wealthy young suitor. Saxon runs across her while she is sketching and later they kiss each other rapturously in the moonlight. He takes her to lunch and Tess Willi comes to their table and makes a date with Saxon. Marza tells her she hopes she is not counting on marrying Saxon—that he has not enough money. Wondering if she had better give Saxon up, she gets a reassuring note from him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

HE mused on this, fancied himself stealing into the room, taking the chair opposite her. The light that would fly into her eyes—the bubble of very young laughter.

He pushed the papers and pencils impulsively aside. Sweet to surprise her so. He would.

He shrugged into his coat, humming a song.

The door to an inner room opened. A man, short in stature, but with a marvelously set head and a face of supreme beauty, called out: "Not going, I hope! Thought you'd made me the sketch for Bromley."

Saxon slipped off his coat and with a smothered curse, hung it again on the hook.

"Oh, by the way, Page was greatly pleased with the window you worked into his living room. Nice that. I'll have a bite with you, later on."

Saxon grinned. Later on would probably be midnight, or nearly. Time meant nothing to Paul Rhodes. He never tired and imagined others—especially Saxon—endowed with the same blazing energy. A genius—consumed with one fervor—his work. It was breath to him. He was a slave to it and an unconscious slave-driver to others.

He would return to that room now and sketch bold, imposing elevations for the million-dollar apartment house he was about to create. He would forget Saxon, forget time, forget hunger. Hours later when Saxon knocked, he would come out, apologize, incredulous, even offended that time had vanished so swiftly.

Lovable, inspiring, restless, the thought of his uncle goaded Saxon incessantly. A man still young who had reached the top of his profession by sheer intellect and effort, Paul's presence was continually urging: "Work, slave, forget yourself. You, too, can achieve."

In lazy moods he would think: "Why should I sacrifice the pleasant life; the well-balanced life when I haven't the genius to warrant it? All right for Paul to live like a recluse; to give up everything for his work. He can make some contribution. No use in kidding myself. I'm average. I might as well take happiness—let achievement go hang."

He would rationalize in this manner when he was taking time off for week-ends. Or when, for three or four nights in succession he was devoting himself to pleasure. After all, a fellow is only young once! And for such a brief

This proved a very soothing attitude. But he was never able to hold it long. A piece of work would suddenly absorb him. Or Paul would note some brilliant detail in one of his sketches. He would offer a scant word of praise.

Saxon was young enough to be carried away by this. He would plunge heart and soul into the dream that had kept him grinding through four years at college, and that made him now hold himself down mercilessly to his work.

He still owed Paul $1,300

It was this thought that now came stealing upon him as he went back to his stool. He wrote on the corner of a paper: $1,300——

Paul had helped him in his last two years because Paul had faith in him and wanted him to give all his time to his studies.

He got out the rough sketch of the Bromley place. It was to be an Italian farm-house, a vision of loveliness, rising in natural beauty like the very trees on the knoll.

He didn't draw. He thought of that $1,300—a symbol of his ambition.

And he thought of Jerry. Thought of last night. She had reached her hands to his neck and laid her soft cheek on his. The sweetness of this movement went through him like a music. He loved her. He wanted her. Exceedingly.

Suppose—well, suppose they did get married——

His breath labored on the thought. Then he laughed softly, imagining himself and Jerry going off together.

He became warm and excited—burning with restlessness. Why could they not do this?

He pulled a sheet of paper roughly—began furiously to sketch. No—he couldn't get married. He hoped he wasn't going to go insane and try this.

It would end in misery. For both. Paul would be disgusted—would probably kick him out. And he was under a moral obligation to carry on here at least till his debt was paid.

He considered first one side—then the other. Oh—throw everything up—rush off—seize this sweet, bright gift that had come to him. Perhaps, from every standpoint it was the better thing to do—dear little Jerry—his wife. . . .

Then the other—the years in Paris that Paul kept so alluring before him. Lord! Give up this dream? He would NOT!

Settle down into miserable commonplaceness? A draughtsman all his life?

He began to work furiously. He felt her soft brown hand as though it touched pleadingly and drew on his heart.

Not till Friday, partly because Paul had kept him busy the whole week and partly because he feared his own emotions, did he see Jerry again. But her voice that afternoon over the telephone called to him so gaily—so audaciously. At 5 o'clock he went out to school to meet her.

She saw him, came with a swift, happy run and caught his hand.

They walked until they came to a park.

"I know why you're quiet," she said, softly. "You're afraid of it, aren't you?"

"Of what?"

"Oh, of me and my loving!" she laughed—a gay, kid laugh. "I don't care if you are. You see, I don't want to get married. And of course you don't! So that makes it awfully convenient all around."

She took a deep, heavy breath that belied the lightness of her words: "Saxon, you see, I'm the kind of person who doesn't care what others think—or feel. I mean that you don't need to love me back. . . ."

He caught her hand. "But I do—oh, dear little Jerry—I do!"

"Honestly? More than all the others put together?"

"There are no others."

She glanced down at her fingers. They clasped in her lap. "That's awfully thrilling to hear!" She looked up, adoring him with her eyes. "I believe you! But you are the kind of person who keeps on loving—one girl always?"

She flung out a ripple of laughter: "I hope so, Saxon. Because I'm awfully—awfully afraid I'm that kind of a girl! Now, we're all settled. And can go our separate way in bliss and single blessedness."

She closed her eyes, curling one hand in that sweet, childlike appeal. "But I meant what I said, Saxon—you don't have to love me back! Only I'll be most awfully pleased if you do!"

He saw her five nights. Late one afternoon she came into the office. They were alone. As they were leaving, he caught her, kissing her. They laughed.

Just then Paul entered.

A little thing like this is so often a gesture of fate.

CHAPTER IX.

PAUL stepped quickly back to the hall, annoyed that he hadn't guessed someone was there. He might have heard their voices or seen the shadow of their forms—

A moment later the door opened They came out, chatting gayly, quite unconscious that anyone had seen their stolen sweetness.

"Oh—hello," said Saxon, flushing. "You remember Miss King."

Paul greeted them in his courtly manner, Jerry's radiant face giving him a sudden pang. So young—the two of them; so magnificent in the bravery of ignorance. It would all be sunny sailing for them. Of course!

He went in and sat at the immense high board that was his altar. Saxon's sketches for the Italian farmhouse were laid carefully before him.

Paul glanced at them, became excited, then vastly pleased. He studied them carefully. Suddenly he banged on the table; he called out: "Sacks!"

But he had pulled open the door of the empty room before he remembered that it was nearly 7—Saxon gone.

Abruptly he recalled the dark-eyed girl—Saxon kissing her. He went impatiently back to his chair. Some girl! Was Saxon thinking of marrying her?

Faces came to his mind. Lewis Field. Lewis was an artist—22, when he came to work with Paul. A year later Lewis fell in love. And married. The girl was rich and very stunning. She led him a merry dance. Lewis began coming late to work; then exhausted to work—and finally drunk to work.

After Lewis, Blake Cornwall, enterprising, a little unscrupulous, but with a great flash about him. And Blake fell in love. She was a business girl, a "50-50 pal." Blake went about declaring that two can live as cheaply as one—more so, in fact.

He married and found that two, when one is a wife, live as cheaply as four. Besides, there were all of Irma's friends to keep up with. There was the automobile, the radio, the nursemaid and the anniversary diamond that Ella Symonds boasted. And anyone knew Ty wasn't as clever as Blake.

So one fine day, Blake the architect who was to carve his name in classical stone, disappeared. And Blake the builder of claptrap, of showy little stuccoed mansions, took his place.

It never failed, thought Paul—an artist married is an artist lost.

He began to wonder about Saxon. Was he in love with this girl—bent on marrying her? Would he, too, throw over the superb, fine dream because it asked too much?

Paul Rhodes pushed the sketches from him and reached moodly for his hat.

That summer night! For a long, long time it thrilled in Jerry's thought, the sweeter for its undertone of pain.

"You know, Saxon," she began softly, "I think I'm to get the prize for that etching I sent to New York—the one I did in Monterey—the coast line and the cypresses. Mac Phail thinks I ought to try my hand at illustrating. I can't earn my living doing only the things I like. I haven't talent enough for that. He thinks I should try the magazines. I'm excited about it. It's a solution."

"Of what?"

"Of me!" she looked up through the shadows. He saw the sparkle of her pearly teeth; heard her eager laugh, that somehow sounded very pathetic. "It means I can take care of myself. I'll never be a burden to anyone. Oh, you know! Never a halter around the neck of someone else's spirit. Like wives often are!"

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

SLIGHTLY SENTIMENTAL

"WE" ALWAYS has been the sweetest word in the English language—but it took a "Lindy" to give it its "place in the sun" and make it the most popular.

If the average man showed half the tenderness, devotion and solicitude for his wife that Lindbergh shows for his airplane, more marriages would be plain sailing among the clouds and the stars, and fewer would crash to earth in the divorce courts.

HELEN ROWLAND

Genius: The divine ability to see the castle-in-the-air while you are building the little bungalow among the roses—to visualize the Rolls-Royce while you are paying off the mortgage on the flivver.

Man may be more logical than woman. Still, when you see how many buttons, buttonholes, galluses, buckles and patent-fasteners it requires to hold him together, and reflect that all the average girl's clothes are held on by a little faith and six inches of baby ribbon, you sometimes wonder.

When a modern girl rushes into a careless marriage, she probably figures that while she may not get her "ideal," she can "make him do" until she finds something more to her heart's desire.

We sauntered down the city street,
All in an April rain!
But Spring and YOU are there—and so,
That made it "Lovers' Lane"!
It matters not—the rain nor sun—
Nor where your steps may guide you.
Nor city street nor lonely lane—
It's just WHO walks beside you!

Most husbands lead a regular life, if being regularly late to dinner, regularly rushed at breakfast, and regularly out of the house nights means anything.

Special Offer To Victims of Gas and Chronic Indigestion

All Druggists Say Pleasant-to-Take Elixir Must Help Poor, Distressed Stomachs or Money Gladly Refunded.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

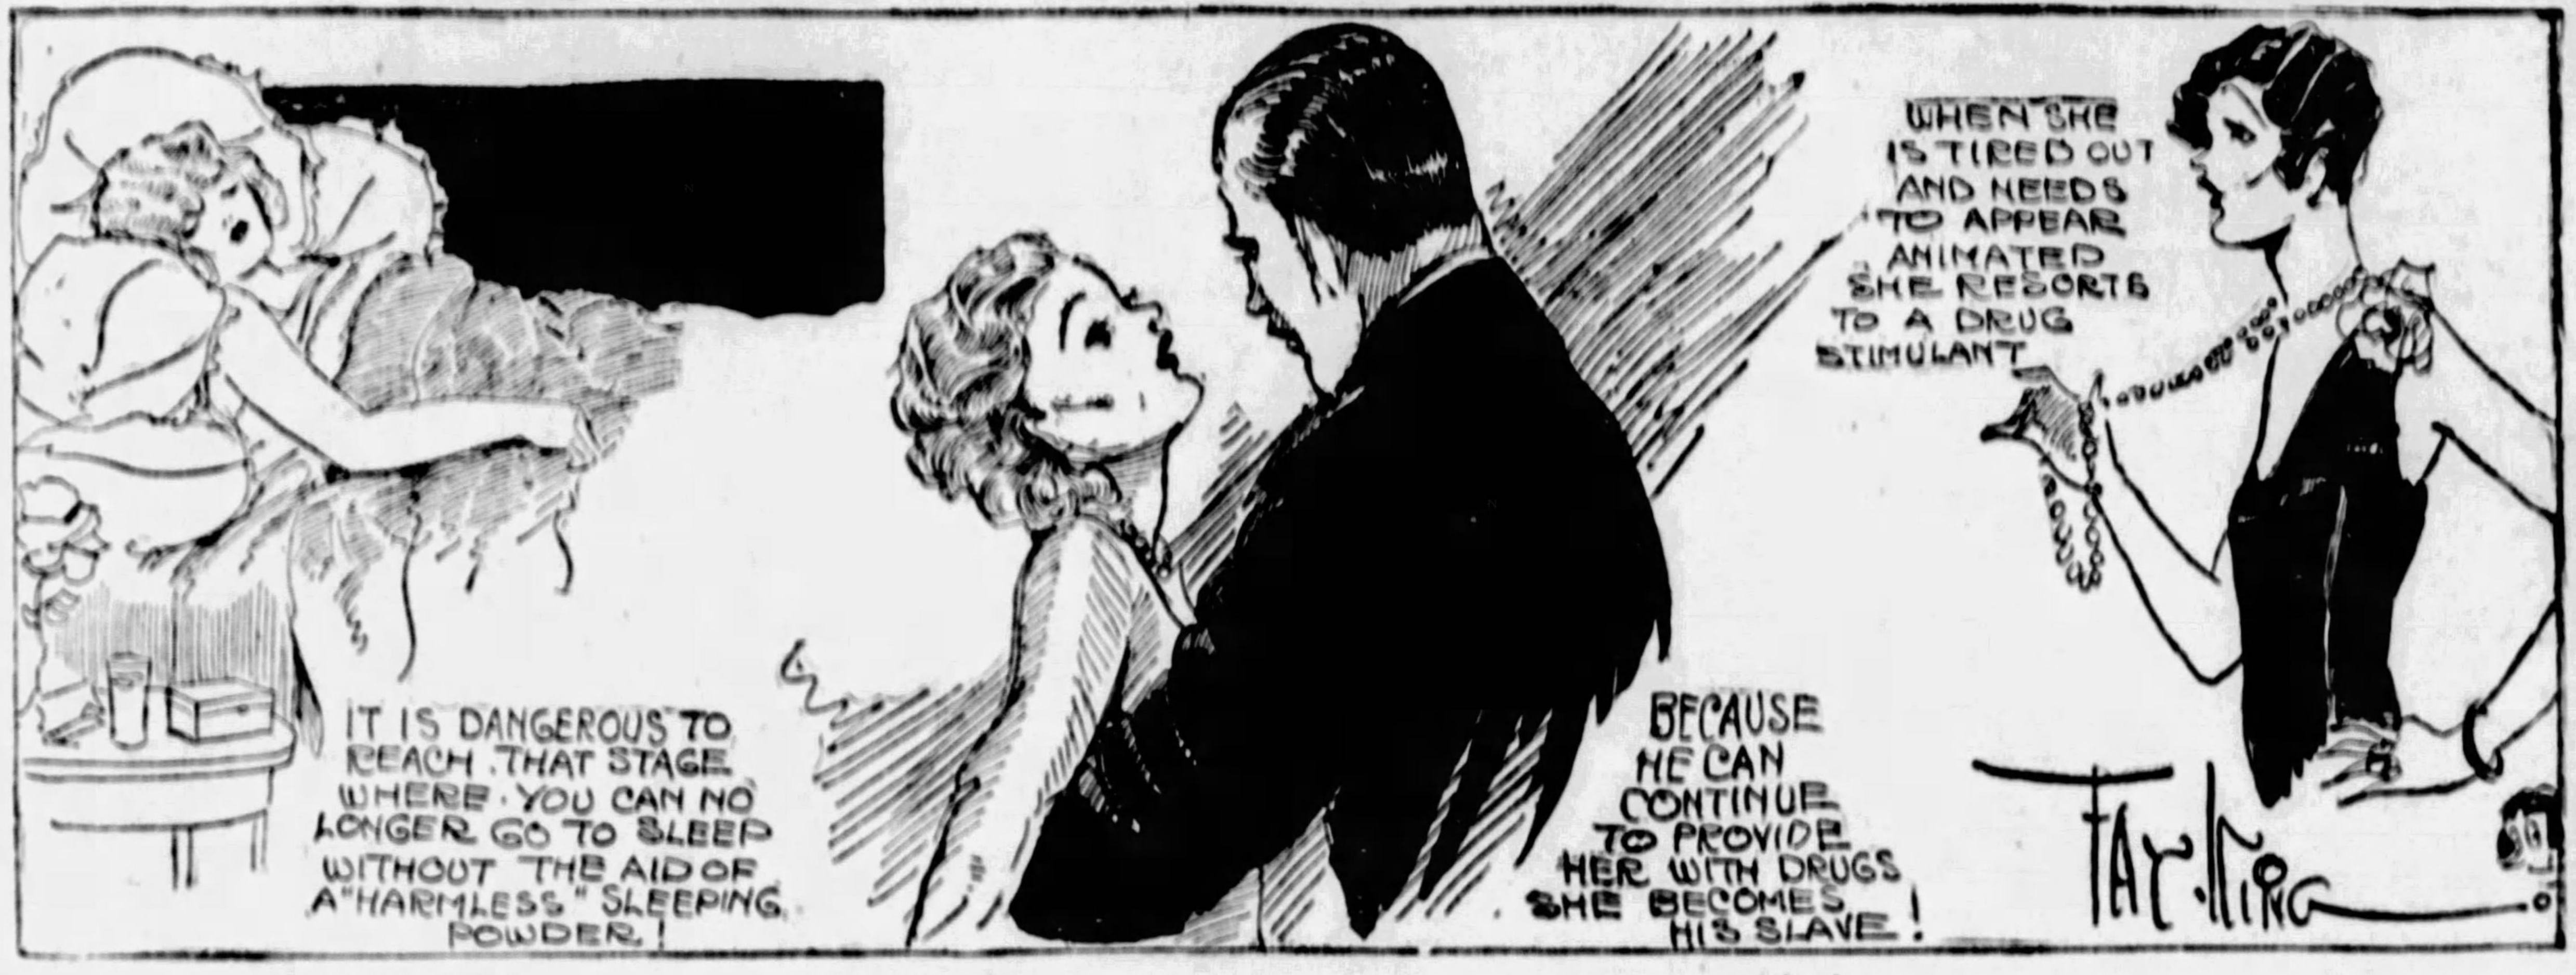
You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

Especially when any druggist anywhere guarantees Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant elixir, to end indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back.

"Dr." Fay King Tells How to Avoid Drug Habits



IT IS DANGEROUS TO REACH THAT STAGE WHERE YOU CAN NO LONGER GO TO SLEEP WITHOUT THE AID OF A "HARMLESS" SLEEPING POWDER!
BECAUSE HE CAN CONTINUE TO PROVIDE HER WITH DRUGS SHE BECOMES HIS SLAVE!
WHEN SHE IS TIRED OUT AND NEEDS TO APPEAR ANIMATED SHE RESORTS TO A DRUG STIMULANT
FAY KING

By FAY KING

THE number of those addicted to habit-forming drugs is appalling!

The sad part of it is that many have drifted into the addiction from use of the milder "harmless drugs."

Any sedative or stimulant is a drug in a mild form.

Those who can no longer go to sleep without their sleeping powder, or rid themselves of headache without a headache powder, are already slaves of mild drug.

Sleep does not come because the system is already awake to the longing and time for its sedative. The headache probably comes merely as a call for the mild drug to which it is becoming accustomed.

Take a long walk and get physically tired, then drink a glass of warm milk and eat an onion sandwich and sleep will come naturally.

A harmless cure for a headache is to roll the head around three or four times one way as far as you can, and two or three times reversely to undizzy yourself.

Most natural headaches come from the stomach, or strained eyes. The cure is a physic or rest.

I've known a raw potato eaten with salt to cure a bad headache in no time.

These are not high sounding remedies, but they are simple and safe.

I believe this semi-starvation which women are indulging in has made many drug addicts! With not enough nourishment to provide natural energy, these women who wish to defy sleep and appear full of pep and vigor when they are really worn out and tired, resort to drug stimulants.

Once an addict, the drug user knows no law but to obey the demand of the craving for drugs.

They will seek and become absolute slaves to anyone who can provide them with drugs.

The drug addict can be cured, but it a long hard fight, and few have the strength to make it!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Troublesome Catarrh and How to Relieve It

A FEW days ago I told you something about catarrh. The space did not permit any extensive discussion of this common trouble. It may not be amiss to say a little more about it today.

DR COPELAND

Whenever we have a form of catarrh, associated with increased flow of mucus, there is bound to be dropping of this substance into the throat. Of course the secretion goes on at night just the same as in the daytime. It flows down into the back of the throat and is swallowed during the sleep.

One of the familiar symptoms of catarrh is the hawking and spitting in the morning. Great efforts are required to clear the throat and to get rid of the sticky, disagreeable mucus which clings to the lining of the nose and throat.

It is not uncommon to have with this form of catarrh, retching, and often vomiting, because of the efforts to get rid of the offensive mucus. Of course, I am describing an extreme case, but nevertheless we see such cases almost every day.

To get rid of the symptoms of catarrh, it is not usual to use sprays and applications to the nose. They have their place, but, unfortunately, they serve merely to cleanse the parts and have little effect upon any permanent relief of the symptoms.

Opening into the nasal passages are a number of cavities which we call nasal sinuses. The bone under the cheek is hollow, the bone at the base of the nose is hollow. These bone cavities are lined with mucous membrane which extends into them from the nasal passages.

In an aggravated case of catarrh the mucous membrane of these cavities is involved and they will fill up with mucus. This accounts for the great flow which comes when you blow the nose, or make an effort to cleanse the parts.

To my mind the best treatment for catarrhal conditions of this sort is the application of argyrol. This must not be done by spraying it into the nose, but by applying it on a tampon of cotton. Your doctor will make this application.

He will take an applicator and wind it with cotton, making a roll about the size and length of a cigaret. This is dipped in 10 per cent argyrol solution and inserted full length into the nasal cavity and left there for one-half hour. It is surprising what a flow of water and mucus will follow this application.

By this treatment the parts are thoroughly cleansed and depleted of blood. Such applications made two or three times a week for some time will do much to relieve a catarrhal condition such as I have discussed today.

Needless to say, to get rid of a condition like this, is sure to improve the general health.

Answers to Health Queries.

E. D. Q.—What do you advise for psoriasis? Is it curable?

A.—In its cure first attention must be given to digestion. Constipation is an important factor, and, even though the bowels move daily, there may be sluggishness. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

R. O. N. Q.—What should a woman of 35, 5 feet 3 inches tall weigh? What will reduce flabby hips and excess fat around the abdomen?

A.—She should weigh about 135 pounds. Careful attention to the diet, cutting down on sweets and starches and taking plenty of outdoor exercise should bring about results. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

FOR my own personal selfish ends I was delighted to see Jim's just anger against Katie vanquished by his loyal consideration of the nervous strain she was undergoing in getting up the welcoming meal. I felt also an irritated conviction that Jim's lenient tenderness was the last thing Katie's increasingly shrewish temper needed. I realized, too, that Jim's softened mood, induced by my appeal to his chivalry concerning my dinner party; might last through the evening and be proof against the barbs of Katie's temperish tongue, but that sooner or later the marital problem of the two humble folk who had served us so loyally would have to be solved.

There was nothing further I could do as far as Jim's reactions were concerned.

"You do yourself an injustice, Jim," I said warmly. "You are neither so slow, nor Katie so quick as you both imagine. You have indulged her too much, that is all, and when this dinner is over and she is rested, I shall take the young woman in hand myself. I am exceedingly grateful to you, however, for sacrificing your own feelings to the success of our party. Now, will you please take the car, and go to the Ticer farm for young Mr. Veritzen? He will be waiting for you. Tell him that I said everything was all right, and that he is to come back with you, but that I want him to see me before anyone else. I want you to go and come across the fields instead of the road, and bring him in the side veranda to the dining room. I will have Katie call me as soon as you arrive. And I am afraid I must ask you to hurry."

Purposely I had forestalled any answer on his part to my expression of thankfulness to him, and my promise to take Katie in hand after our dinner was over. But the look he gave me as he hurried away was dumbly eloquent of gratitude.

I walked slowly back to the kitchen, trying to evolve some device for curbing Katie's sharp tongue for the rest of the evening. But it was a very clumsy subterfuge that I was compelled to use when I again stepped into the brilliantly lighted kitchen.

"Is Jim sick, Katie?" I asked abruptly as I entered, assuming what I fondly hoped was an exceedingly worried look.

Katie looked at me, startled.

"Dot boonch of soup greens too ugly to be seeck," she replied tartly, then with anxiety sharpening her tones, she demanded: "Vot make you tink he seeck?"

"Why, when I was speaking to him just now, he was shaking as if he had a chill, and his eyes looked so queer and wild." I put in an extra flourish or two, with the conscious rectitude of the essential truth of my words. "I really was quite alarmed about him. Do you think I'd better try to have Mrs. Ticer come over and help you? I know she doesn't like to after her day at The Larches, but if Jim should be ill—"

Katie sprang to her feet with energy.

"Dot Jeem he no going be seeck," she said, but I saw that there was fear in her voice and eyes. "Und I no vant dot Missis Ticer anyway. I tink I know vot all dot Jeem. He shoost vore out mit me. I bin like vun devil all day long. No vonder he shake. But ven he coom back, I gif heem leetle surprise. I treat heem better as king. You shoost watch me."

Rich Sponge Cake

Break a dozen eggs into a mixing bowl, adding two cupfuls of sifted powdered sugar, set the bowl into a pan of hot water and keep it just at boiling point a half hour while you beat the egg mixture steadily with the egg beater. Remove from the fire and add a cupful of sifted flour, the juice and grated rind of a lemon. Pour in a buttered chimney pan and bake in a medium oven a half hour. Try with a broom splint. When done, invert the pan over a plate and let cool before removing the cake Frost with a lemon frosting.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Pimples

Can positively be cleared up—often in 24 hours! Sulphur in combination with menthol does it! Succeeds where other measures fail. Sulphur clears the skin, reaches down into the skin and kills the parasites that cause most skin troubles. And as sulphur clears the skin, menthol heals it. Twofold action for perfect results. Pimples, blackheads, acne, skin eruptions—even fiery eczema—yields. The itching and burning stops instantly and soon thorough healing sets in. Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

Hemorrhoid Sufferers

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, quick and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. Now you won't have to say "No!" when they plead for a drink "like Daddy's"

YOU can't blame children for wanting a drink "like daddy's"—especially if they are among the thousands who don't like milk. It's natural for them to want what grown-ups have. And in these chill Spring days, a hot drink is really needed. But of course caffein beverages are out of the question. If there was only a hot, delicious drink that was safe for children!

There is! Instant Postum made with milk! Thousands of mothers serve it already—schools everywhere have made it part of the noon-day lunch.

So easy to make!

Just put a teaspoonful of Instant Postum in a cup, pour in hot (not boiled) milk, stir and sweeten to taste—this wonderful drink is ready! A drink with a rich, smooth flavor that children love—even children who do not like milk alone. And a drink that's so good for them! The wholesome elements of whole wheat and bran, plus the body-building nourishment of milk. A drink without a trace of caffein, or any other drug!

Surprise your children tomorrow! Order Instant Postum from your grocer—serve it, made with milk! And try it yourself—made either with milk or with boiling water. Better still, give Postum a thorough test—make it your mealtime drink for thirty days! Then judge its value! See what a difference it can make in the way you sleep—in the way you feel—in the way you look!

"Mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many cathartic compounds. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. In their effects upon the bowel and its lining membranes they are far less irritating. Indeed, many have qualities that make them soothing and healing. Sugar-coated pills are pleasant to take, which may add to their danger. They are no less habit-forming and drastic because they appeal to the taste."

ST. MALACHY'S TO BE RAZED

Mass was said for the last time in St. Malachy's Catholic Church, Carson street, Limerick, yesterday, and the parish that once boasted of being among the city's best, passed into history. The building will be razed. The moving of the steel mills from the community resulted in a steady decrease in members of the parish, and at yesterda's services less and a hundred worshipers were present. Services were conducted by the Rev. Joseph V. Sharp, pastor.

The church property, between the Smithfield and Point Bridges, has been purchased by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. Several years ago some of the mills sold their property, and since that time there has been a steady exodus from Limerick.

Father Sharp has been assigned to a church in Brentwood.

FAMILY FLEES FIRE IN HOME

H. B. Booce, his wife and their two small children fled from their home, at 417 Fairywood street, West End, in their nightclothes early this morning when fire, starting in the basement, filled the house with smoke.

The blaze is believed to have started from an overheated furnace. The smoke awakened Booce, and he aroused the others in the family as the flames appeared on the first floor. The home, a two-story frame, was destroyed, with little of the furnishings saved.

NEW SLEUTHS GIVEN OATH

Six new county detectives, appointed last Thursday, were sworn in today by William Fairman, clerk in Quarter Sessions Court, before Judge Joseph M. Swearingen.

The new sleuths are Thomas Caig, 1855 Cliff street; Frank L. Ritz, Overbrook; Patrick Traynor, Duquesne; Charles J. Peacock, 56 Wabash avenue; James C. O'Brien, Glassport, and E. M. Frank, of Harmarville.

With the new men, there now are 30 county detectives. The salary for each is $2,500 a year.

CAR AND TRUCK COLLIDE

One person was injured and a score of passengers in a street car were shaken up when an auto truck of the Hermes Dairy Company and the car collided at Forbes and Miltenberger streets today.

Chester Gorskey, 23 the truck driver, received a fractured hip, Mercy Hospital reported. The police report that the outbound truck bounced over a defect in the street, colliding with the inbound car.

HOLLAND IN CENTER

curator of the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Holland is at present residing in Darien, Conn. For three years, Holland and his wife have been living apart.

According to affidavits, Mrs. Ziegler and Holland met on a golf course in 1921. In 1922, when the artist went to Italy, he is reported to have received several telegrams from Mrs. Ziegler. To her astonishment, relates Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Ziegler put in an appearance at the Holland abode in Europe a few days after their arrival.

In 1926, Mrs. Ziegler sued for divorce on the ground of desertion. The suit was dropped for a time. Attorneys for Ziegler implored Mrs. Holland to help the millionaire secure a divorce but she refused.

HUSBAND REMARRIES

On January 5, 1927, Ziegler married Miss Helen Martin Murphy, of Troy, N. Y.

Mrs. Holland reiterates that she is willing to forgive him and forget. The Hollands were married in 1911. She is bringing a suit for separation against him to "prevent her home being sold over her head," friends said today.

Mrs. Ziegler, now living in a Fifth avenue apartment here, is reputed to be worth $3,000,000. She has made a denial of Mrs. Holland's charges. Efforts are being made by attorneys for both parties to shroud the alienation suit in deepest secrecy. Mrs. Ziegler and the Hollands are socially prominent.

Panthers Win District Flag

By JESS CARVER

HAD Pitt's great basketball team, and great it most certainly is, been forced to subscribe to its initial and only defeat of the season in the game Saturday with West Virginia, the Panthers would have suffered not one wit from loss of prestige. It would have been almost as much of an honor to have lost to the team that represented West Virginia Saturday as it was to defeat the same team.

It is only right that a champion arise to beat a champion.

There is no doubt but that the class of the Panthers' quintet, champions again of the Big Four as a result of having beaten the Mountaineers for the second time, is generally superior to that of West Virginia. Hyatt is a better player than any man on the West Virginia team. The Pitt attack is more deceptive, and the defense smarter. But the Pitt spirit, brave and valiant though it is, hasn't a thing on West Virginia.

The Mountaineers made a game stand Saturday night, and they made a sportsmanlike stand. Both teams played clean basketball—and gave proper exhibitions of the way in which two collegiate fives should conduct themselves. The attitude of the spectators, of the crowd that jammed every inch of space in the Morgantown High School gym was admirable—giving credit where credit was due without stint, and while paying roaring tribute to the fighting qualities of the West Virginia boys, was equally quick to praise the Panthers.

PANTHERS ARE "IN"

Pitt has definitely clinched the district championship for the season, as well as the Big Four title. With a single tri-state game remaining to be played, with Wash-Jeff tomorrow night, the worst the great Panther team can do is finish with a record of eight games won, and one lost, for a percentage of .888. Westminster, even if the U. P.'s win both their remaining contests with Geneva and Grove City, cannot do better than get a 12 won, two lost standing, a percentage of 31 points under what Pitt's final average would be. So Westminster, after a game fight, will have to content itself with its first Conference title—no mean prize.

It looks as though the Dukes clinched the championship for Pitt by knocking off Lawther's U. P.'s last week.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

cording to report, it will be merely the entering wedge whereby Rickard will eventually buy controlling interest in the Giants from C. A. Stoneham, move the baseball club over to Yankee Stadium for its home games, and turn the Polo Grounds in an a 11-year-round sports arena that will seat 100,000 persons at football games and 125,000 at fistic shows.

An enormous outdoor ice rink for the winter months also is contemplated, but it would be impossible to depend upon natural ice in a hockey schedule that part of the arrangements doesn't sound "so good."

Whether the rest of the story has any real foundation remains to be seen. It is possible that some strong National League interests may oppose the step, and even the Yankee owners themselves may not be in favor of it.

IT WOULD be a queer turn of fate if the Giants were to be shifted to the Yankee Stadium for their home games. It would be a case of the National League club renting quarters from a former tenant whom it evicted.

Tex Rickard.

Up to the end of the 1922 season the Yankees played their home games at the Polo Grounds, and it is said the rental they paid for three months' use of the place each season amounted to more than the Giants paid for the park for an entire year. In other words, the Giants were making money before the season opened, and without playing game.

But that wasn't all. With no other suitable field or stadium available in New York for other extraordinary sport events, the New York National League club had a monopoly on all the big fights and a number of football games, including the annual Army-Navy battle, which drew large crowds, and from the receipts at which the Giant owners were taking a cut of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent.

THEN they became peeved at the Yanks and ordered them to get out. It proved the biggest business boner in the history of baseball, for the Yanks erected their present stadium on the other side of the Harlem River and since 1923 the Giants, instead of having the field to themselves as formerly, have had opposition.

Not only did they lose the huge rental the Yanks had paid for the use of the Polo Grounds, but most of the big fights and football games also went to the new stadium.

It amounted to setting up a competitor right next door to your own place of business.

RICKARD says he was compelled to get the Polo Grounds this year for boxing shows, at least, because the American League schedule would interfere with the holding of proposed fights at the Yankee Stadium.

The Yanks are booked to play at home from May 4 to 28, from June 27 to July 23, and from August 9 to September 1.

Bill Busch.

Tex says that would give him June and from July 24 to August 7 for outdoor boxing shows and he figures the time adequate for six matches he has planned—Tunney in a heavyweight title bout on June 14, Dundee and Hudkins in a welter championship scrap, Mandell and McLarnin in a lightweight titular shindy, Loughran and Delaney in a light-heavyweight throne argument, a bout between Lomski and a good light heavyweight, and perhaps a heavyweight elimination before a fall match for Tunney.

THE longest individual sport contest since the World War rudely interrupted a game of checkers being played by post card between a man in Pittsburgh and a friend in Russia got under way yesterday, when more than 250 runners, including Bill Busch of Pittsburgh and Cannie Padula of Braddock, started on the long foot race from Los Angeles to New York, approximately 3,000 miles.

That spells a great many more starters than will come within a couple of miles of finishing in the contest, which is expected to be run at the rate of 50 miles a day and to be concluded in two months.

The man who makes the best time will win a prize of $25,000; the second man will receive $10,000; the third man $5,000, the fourth $2,500 and the six following runners $1,000 each.

LEO MACKEY a Tri-State basketball and football official of high repute, is preparing to leave Pittsburgh next Saturday to join the Nashville Southern Association Baseball Club, on which he has been a catcher for six successive seasons.

Leo Mackey.

Leo was to have been made manager of a club in another league in the South but the Southern Association clubs refused to waive on him.

During the last basketball season and the present one Leo has handled over 200 floor games and the majority of those games ranked among the most important played hereabouts. He has frequently been assigned to the toughest games, the "grudge" battles, and always has come out with flying colors. In fact no official in the history of the sport can lay a claim to a record to surpass his and none ever sprang into prominence and popularity as quickly as he did.

GIRL, 16, REPRESENTS U. S. IN STATE MEET

LONDON, March 5.—(AP.)—With Miss Maribel Winson, 16-year-old Boston girl, competing for the United States, the women's figure skating championship of the world opened this morning at London's new ice club. The other competitors were from Norway, Sweden, Austria, England and Canada. They included Sonja Henie, of Oslo, Norway, who won the Olympic championship recently at St. Moritz, and Miss Constance Wilson, of Toronto, Canada.

Most of the day was devoted to the execution of compulsory figures. The finals will be decided tomorrow afternoon after an exhibition of free skating.

PITT BECOMES MEMBER OF EASTERN SWIM GROUP

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Applications for associate membership in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming Association from Army, New York University and the University of Pittsburgh were passed upon favorably at the annual spring meeting of the organization here yesterday.

Final plans for holding the intercollegiate title tests at the University of Pennsylvania March 23 and 24 were discussed. By granting West Point, Pitt and New York University associate memberships, the association made the swimmers from these colleges eligible for the coming individual championships.

LATZO WITH JOHNSTON

NEW YORK, March 5.—(INS.)—James J. Johnston has signed a five-year contract to manage Pete Latzo, former world's welterweight champion. Johnston, who also holds an interest in Jack Sharkey and Mike McTigue, hopes to match Latzo with Mickey Walker, middleweight champion.

WALTONS MEET HERE

The annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Izaak Walton League will be held tonight in the Rehearsal Hall of the Carnegie Institute. Election of officers will be the main business to be transacted.

SHOTS and PASSES by Julius Levin

THE E. P. Junkers of McKeesport will attempt to clinch the second-half laurels of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League tonight when they invade Columbus Temple to meet the Siano Club.

The Junkers have two more games to play to complete their second half schedule, both with the Sianos, and they need only one victory to assure themselves of a place in the playoffs with the J. J. Mieles, winners of the first-round title.

There is only one club that has a chance to tie the Junkers in event they lose their remaining games. The Somermans, who nosed them out in McKeesport Saturday, will go into a deadlock with the Junkers should the Tubers lose to the Sianos tonight at Columbus Temple and Saturday at McKeesport.

THE Community House varsity and reserve teams will face strong opposition next Thursday night at Community House, the varsity meeting the Penn Five of Sharpsburg, while the reserves clash with the Heinz House Reserves in the preliminary contest.

Community House is scheduled to meet the Pittsburgh Lancers at Carnegie Tech next Saturday for the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. basketball championship and the battle with Penn Five should put the North Siders in fine fettle for the title contest.

The preliminary game promises to vie with the main attraction in enthusiasm as both teams have been rivals for a number of years. The two teams hail from virtually the same section. The Community Reserves have made a fine record this season, losing only one game, that to Mifflin M. E. away from home.

THE Goldensons of the South Side have made arrangements to meet the Broadway Club of Beechview in a two-game series, the first of which is scheduled Thursday night on the Broadway floor.

The second contest will be played at the South Side Market House next Friday night. In event the two clubs split even there is a possibility of a third and deciding contest being arranged.

Besides the main attraction at the Market House Friday night the Goldenson Vanities will meet the strong Loeffler Girls, while the Dairy Cottage quintet engages the Osceola Club in the first preliminary.

day working out with Garfield Johnson and others and has impressed the fans who have watched him go through his training paces in the gymnasium of the Swissvale A. C.

Rosenbloom has established himself as a favorite here. He is a good showman and a high and fancy slapper who cuffs his opponents around with plenty of vim and vigor. If Brown is half as good as he is cracked up to be, it should be quite a fight.

Tug Phillips of Homewood and Jess Hoak, the free swinger of McKeesport, will appear in the eight round semi-final, Jack Unglo of Etna, erstwhile amateur star, will trade wallops with Denver Leonard of the Hill in the second shindy, and Young Nanci of Swissvale and Dave Brown of Atlantic City will do the honors in the opener.

LITTLE WASHINGTON SHOW

Andy Stahura and Joe Eirene top a bill that marks the resumption of professional boxing on a business-like scale in Little Washington tonight. It will be a 10-rounder, and the show will be held in the Washington Gardens. In three six-round preliminaries, Banty Reihner boxes Chuck Ven, Abie Wits mixes with George Tomosky and Mule Brown meets Tom Warde.

U. S. Carpentier of New Kensington and rough little Louie DeArco of Cleveland are down for a 10-rounder at New Castle tonight, with John Kilvady and Jack Fitz meeting in a six-rounder on the same card. Phil Goldstein, local lightweight, boxes Joey Durando in a 10-rounder at Jersey City.

Other bouts billed tonight include: Young Stribling vs. Chuck Wiggins, 12 rounds, Cleveland; Battling Levinsky vs. Boy Blue, 6 rounds, Brooklyn; Cannonball Martin vs. Johnny Huber, 4 rounds, New York; Jimmy Byrne vs. Harry Dillon, 10 rounds, Chicago, and Phil (K. O.) Kaplan vs. Vincent Forgione, and Benny Valger vs. Joey Williams, 10 rounds each, Philadelphia.

ZIVIC SCORES KNOCKOUT

Pete Zivic, local bantamweight, obtained revenge for his stablemate, Allentown Johnny Leonard, in a bout in New York Saturday night when he knocked out Lou Moscowitz in the first round. Moscowitz had stopped Leonard in the first round a few weeks ago. Joey Katkish lost a six-round decision to Al Singer in a preliminary to the Zivic-Moscowitz bout.

California Joe Gans is slated to arrive in McKeesport several days in advance of his 10-round battle with Joey LaGrey there next Thursday night.

M'PHAIL WINS GOLF EVENT AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., March 5.—(INS.)—W. F. McPhail, of Boston, today was the winner of the annual Spring golf tournament here. McPhail defeated Robert Harlow, of New York, by 7 and 6 in the final match, which had been postponed a day because of Harlow's illness.

Willie Kohlemainen Leads Marathoners

By Universal Service.

PUENTE, Cal., March 5.—Willie Kohlemainen of Finland, cousin of Hans Kohlemainen, winner of the 1920 Olympic games marathon, is off to a good start in C. C. Pyle's Los Angeles-to-New York grind. He led a field of more than 250 runners and walkers into Puente last night. This city was the first stop on the route mapped out by Pyle.

The Finn finished the 16 miles in one hour, 28 minutes and 29 seconds, and was not even breathing hard.

Kohlemainen is one of the favorites to capture the $25,000 purse posted by Pyle. The runners left Ascot Speedway at approximately 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Following Kohlemainen into Puente were Gunnar Nilson, who was two minutes behind the leader. Richmond was third, the Hopi Indian, Quomawahu, fourth. The latter is also one of the favorites.

The remainder of the first 10 to finish were as follows: Fifth, Fager; sixth, Erickson; seventh, Conto; eighth, Gonzales; ninth, Payne; tenth, Wamtimen.

Heidelberg Eliminated

defeat by a 2 goals to 1 score at Magyar Field here.

Never in the history of the game in the West has a team been buffeted around by the elements as was Heidelberg, and when half time arrived after fighting uphill in the face of a terrific wind and sleet storm the players came into the dressing room literally covered with ice from head to foot. Just why Referee Jarvis did not call the game could not be understood by the fans that braved the elements. Heidelberg, who again had the misfortune to loose the toss of the coin, had to kick uphill and against the storm.

Storm clouds started to gather from the lake and rain began to fall at noon. This naturally kept down the crowd.

The crowd numbered about 1,000 and the bitter cold wind, accompanied by the driving rain, made things uncomfortable.

Heidelberg's defense was wonderful under this handicap, for the Magyars, realizing that it was a glorious chance for victory, threw everything into the game. Gallagher was the star on the attack.

Gallagher scored the first goal for Cleveland, touching the ball neatly beyond Courtley's reach after Kane had swung the ball across the field in a neat movement.

Heidelberg's front line tried hard to get into operation, but whether it was the buffeting of the storm or the vigilance of the Magyar defense, the fact remains the Green and Gold never looked like scoring.

Still keeping up the pressure, the Forest City eleven further increased the lead when Grothe banged the ball into the net from a scrimmage.

Pittsburghers felt that the two-goal lead would soon be nullified when that Heidelberg Tornado swung into action, but they figured without the Magyar strategy board. The ball was kicked out of bounds on every possible occasion and much time was wasted.

The usual teamwork was missing and chances galore to even up the score were missed. The Magyar defense took a terrific lacing, but goals would not come. This was due to the wildness of the Heidelberg forwards. Chappell, Donnelli and McCosky firing the ball over the bar when a little steadiness might have brought better results.

With 10 minutes to go a wild scramble started around the Magyar goal and F. Donnelli shot the ball into the net. Even this success did not seem to rouse Heidelberg from the lethargy it had settled into.

This lasted until Referee Jarvis blew the final whistle heralding the fact that Heidelberg had passed from the picture as a contender for the amateur championship. The team gave its worst exhibition of the season. This was due, no doubt, to that terrific battle it had to stage in the first 45 minutes. No team could have faced that storm and won the game.

The lineup:

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

will roll on Friday and Saturday, March 23-24.

These are the only teams entered from Pittsburgh this year, which reflects the general decrease in interest in tenpin bowling in these parts in favor of the rubber-band duckpins. In former years, this city almost invariably sent a large delegation to the A. B. C. The newer generation of bowlers, however, has shown a great liking for the smaller pins and light-weight balls and it remains for the gradually thinning ranks of the veterans to uphold the prestige of this community at the A. B. C.

IN PAST years, Pittsburgh has captured its share of honors in the A. B. C. Harry E. Smyers of this city set an all-time record in the individual event with a high score of 749 in 1924, and, two years later, Eddie Votel of East Pittsburgh won the same event with a count of 721, which gives him the runner-up honors. Harry Cavan of this city won the individual title in 1919 with a count of 718, the fifth highest score ever made in that division. Thus, in the last nine A. B. C. tournaments, Pittsburgh has won the singles title three times, and placed all three men among the first five in high scoring in the 28-year history of the event.

This city never has won in the doubles, five-men event or all-events, but always has finished well up among the leaders and gathered in a large share of the prize money in the aggregate.

LAST year's A. B. C. champions were the Tea Shops team of Milwaukee in the five-men event, M. Flick and F. Snyder of Erie, Pa., in the doubles, W. Eggars of Chicago in the individual rolling and H. Spinella of New York in the all-events.

The record scores at which this year's bowlers will shoot are: Singles, Harry E. Smyers, Pittsburgh, 749, rolled in 1924; doubles, H. Thoma and C. Thoma, Chicago, 1,388, rolled in 1924; five-men event, Tea Shops, Milwaukee, 3,199, rolled last year, and all-events, Billy Knox, Philadelphia, 2,019, rolled in 1923.

Jimmy Smith and H. Spinella are the only bowlers who have won the all-events twice, Smith in 1911 and 1929, and Spinella in 1922 and last year. Back in 1916 a triple tie resulted for the lead in the singles, requiring a roll-off. There have been three roll-offs of ties in the individual event and one in the doubles, but none in the five-men or all-events.

PROMINENT names are missing from the roll of Pittsburghers who will compete this year. The Votel brothers are not among the entries, nor are other notables. Following are those who will compete, according to the official list of entries:

J. Lehner, L. Carroll, A. Hogel, S. Kuehler, A. Brantner, H. Bickert, F. Snyder, J. Sauer, H. Schmidt, F. Barth, P. Hornick, G. Braun, P. Harper, T. Ashenfelter, E. Rennie, L. Marone, W. Williams, W. Segrist, H. Hutchinson, H. Gearhart, G. McKee and G. Ormiston.

With this mere handful of only 22 men from a formerly large tenpin center competing, is it any wonder that the American Duckpin Congress recently was formed here by the alley owners, who recognize the supremacy of the duckpin sport in their vicinity? This organization will hold its first national duckpin tournament here, on the Haus alleys, April 9 to 21, and hopes in time to make the competition as large and outstanding, if not more so, as the big tenpin competition, although the latter has a start of 28 years, having been first staged back in 1901.

THE time will come when the tenpin game will be as extinct hereabouts as the well-known dodo bird, if, indeed, it is not almost here already. Contrast Pittsburgh's entry of only four five-men teams, 11 doubles pairs and 22 individuals with Buffalo's 14 teams, Chicago's 176 teams, Cincinnati's nine teams, Cleveland's 13, Denver's 12, Detroit's 29, Erie's nine, Fort Wayne's six, Louisville's 15, Milwaukee's 49, New York's 14, Omaha's 17, Peoria's 14, St. Louis' 27, St. Paul's eight and 10 from Springfield, Ill., and the handwriting on the wall may be easily discerned for the large pin sport insofar as its life and usefulness in Pittsburgh are concerned.

Kansas City, where the A. B. C. tourney is being staged, has 1,567 five-men teams entered of a total of 2,251 from 156 cities.

Canonsburg Boy Gets Release From Giants

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 5.—(AP.)—Joe Klinger, an outfielder purchased by McGraw from Norfolk, had the distinction today of being the first rookie to depart from the Giants' camp. After coming from Canonsburg, Pa., for three meals and a night's rest he was notified that he had been sold to Little Rock.

When Terry and Jack Cummings, who are on the way, arrive, the absentees on the New York roster will be diminished to Roush, Crawford and Aldridge.

COGSWELL ENTERS MEET

Ray Cogswell of Edgewood will represent the Pittsburgh Athletic Association in the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. championship swimming gala to be held at the Pittsburgh Natatorium on Monday evening, March 12, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club. He will compete in the 220-yard free-style swim for men.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,

PASO ROBLES, March 5.—The Pirate Regulars and Hooligans are ready for the first camp battle of the year which is slated for tomorrow afternoon, Manager Donie Bush today gave out his batting orders for the initial fracas. Here's the way the two squads will form:

YANNIGANS	REGULARS
Bartell, 2nd	L. Waner, cf
Brickell, rf	Adams, 2nd
Cronin, ss	P. Waner, rf
Harris or Scott, 1b	Wright, ss
Gotteliber, 3b	Traynor, 3b
T. Waner, cf	Grantham, 1b
Comorosky, lf	Barnhart, lf
L. Hemsley, Haeffner, c	Smith, Scott, c
Hill, Miljus, Kremer, p	2 rookie hurlers to be chosen.

The orders are subject to quick revision. Left field, for instance, may be changed. Bush wants to have Barnhart and Comorosky both at top form so he will keep each in this position.

If Commy remains in the Hooligan lineup it does not necessarily mean that he will be on the bench when the season opens.

The Pittsburgh pilot plans to follow the method that keep the first-string hurlers in the lineup of the Yans. This plan enables the favored team to swing at the kind of pitching it will see when the season begins.

IS ONE of the most famous baseball parks in the country, the Polo Grounds in New York, to pass out of existence as a National League landmark and a home of the diamond sport.

C. A. Stoneham.

The die would appear to be cast to that end if we could take it for granted that reports from Gotham are founded on facts, for it is said that preliminary steps are being taken in a huge deal with that purpose in view.

That Tex Rickard has practically closed negotiations for a new lease on the Polo Grounds that will give exclusive use of that park for boxing shows in the summer for the first time since the Dempsey-Firpo fight in 1923 is pretty well understood. Rickard himself confirms it.

BUT it is said the transaction will not end there. Instead, ne-

TRAVEA THE SANDOW

For a youngster, Cousin Travea Waner is quite a strong man. Just amaze yourself with his above exhibition of weight-lifting. He is holding up Lloyd and Paul as easily as if they were no relatives of his—and everybody knows that relations, and especially poor ones, are always with us, like death and taxes, and are to be deplored. Not that this crack is meant to apply to the Waners. A lot of young men would like to be related to them by blood and in baseball playing ability.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 5.—"I'm on pins and needles to see that new infield in action," remarked Chic Fraser as he watched the Pirates in a peppery session in the big ball park. Fraser has been studying the diamond sport for 35 years, but there is ever a new thrill for him. Bush's revamped foursome holds the spell for the big game hunter, and a lot of other folks feels the same way as Chic.

GRANTHAM has almost twice as much pepper while adorned with a first base mit. There was something about the keystone sack that harassed the Arizona Greyhound. Boots is as loose as the Goose of baseball lore when he bounces around the gateway post. And when he starts to bound he's a treat. It is doubtful whether Sprout Waner can "take" George in a foot race.

JOHNNY GOOCH'S 1910 "Gulley Jumper," will not grace the streets of Pittsburgh this year, mores the pity. And no more will Socko ride it triumphantly into Nashville. The famous gas buggy, for which Gooch paid something like $100 after the car had been driven almost 150,000 miles, finished second in a smash up recently. The car was a mess, one of those towing autos rushed to the scene quickly after the crash, the wrecking crew and Gooch sized up the wreckage in the ditch.

"How much will it cost to take it in?" asked the Pirate.

"Forty dollars," snapped the tow boss.

"Leave it there," retorted Gooch.

Parks Manager Repudiates Links Plans

The unofficial set of plans for the new golf coures in the North and South Allegheny County Parks, published prematurely, but not by The Sun-Telegraph, were repudiated today by John Jay Burke, city manager of the parks. His denial confirmed the statement of Superintendent of County Parks P. B. Reese, who said the released drawings were absolutely unauthentic.

"The County Commissioners and Superintendent Reese are holding the plans under advisement at this time," said Burke, "and there will be many changes in them for both parks before they are officially completed and released. The superintendent is not satisfied with the plans in their present state and expects to revise them thoroughly. He is taking into consideration other park facilities not utilized by the architect."

IF YOU have an eye or an ear for figures, you will find something interesting about the annual A. B. C. bowling tournament, which opens at 7:30 this evening at Kansas City.

It is the twenty-eighth annual A. B. C. tournament, held in 1928 and will be rolled over 28 alleys.

THE A. B. C. tournament is the red-letter event of the bowling sport. This year it has attracted a world's record entry of 2,251 teams. It will require almost constant rolling until April 2 to dispose of the large field.

It will not be until March 19, or two weeks from today, that the first Pittsburgh team will get into competition. This will be the Saunier Wilhelm No. 2 team, of which Fred Barth is captain. The Saunier Wilhelm No. 1 team, with L. Carroll as captain, will roll on the same squad, taking the alleys at 10:15 that night. They will roll the singles and doubles the following day. The P. A. Atlanta Joins Air Cities; Its Record Trade Growth.

By B. C. FORBES

ATLANTA, March 4.

HERE is another city where the air is full of flying talk. Within a few weeks Atlanta will be prominently on the national air map. Daily service direct between Atlanta and New York is to be established. Mail now takes 22 hours. The air mail will take nine hours. A whole business day will thus be saved and a day's interest saved on money sent from one city to the other. Letters mailed before 5 in the evening will reach their destination the following morning.

LATER in the year Atlanta will have, also, direct air service with Miami. It will be the half-way stop on the new 15-hour service between New York and Miami, with Jacksonville, one of the most solid cities in Florida, as the mid-way station.

Our Department of Commerce is planning to have this new air service extended to Mexico City, provided Mexico fulfills its program to inaugurate an air line between Mexico City and Nuevo Laredo, just across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Tex. with a link to Tampico. Our post-office department stands ready to begin service between San Antonio—already hooked up with Dallas—and Laredo and then will come service between Laredo and New Orleans via Houston, with a line scheduled between New Orleans and Atlanta.

Until one makes a journey over this country, it is difficult to realize the progress being made in instituting air transportation. Mail lines unquestionably will be followed in the very near future by passenger lines—in combination. The Pitcairn Aviation Company of Philadelphia, which will conduct the Atlanta-New York line, plans to carry passengers before long.

ATLANTA'S amazing manufacturing growth, described in the previous column, has been almost matched by her expansion in wholesale and retail trade. Retail trade has blossomed from some $20,000,000 in 1900 to $178,000,000 in 1926. Wholesale trade in the same time expanded $500,000,000, an extraordinary record. Bank clearings, meanwhile, have increased from $98,000,000 to almost 3½ billion dollars. Is this a national record?

ATLANTA'S unique railway facilities have contributed invaluably to her growth in both manufacturing and distributing. Eight railway systems send 15 main lines radiating in all directions, carrying 150 passenger trains daily. Over 500 merchandise and baggage cars originate in and move out of the city every 24 hours. George M. West, the live-wire ex-president of the Chamber of Commerce, points out the interesting fact that the Southern Railway has lines striking out of the city in five distinctly different directions, a showing not matched by any other road in any other city.

AFTER journeying thousands of miles, encountering all kinds of hotels, it always is a pleasure to reach Atlanta, because the palatial Biltmore Hotel, courageously built by William Candler, of the family to which Atlanta owes so much, is not surpassed by any hotel in New York, Chicago or any other city. And, after all, an ideal hotel is among a city's best assets and advertisements.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 5.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points. A little selling on relatively easy Liverpool cables appeared to be more than offset by trade buying and covering, the latter probably prompted by failure of the weather map to show expected rains in the Southwest over Sunday. While trading was rather quiet, prices held steady during the first hour.

May sold up to 18.50c and October to 18.00c, net advances of about 8 to 10 points on active positions.

Private cables reported hedging, with continental and Bombay selling in the Liverpool market early, the declines being followed by moderate rallies on trade calling and local buying.

The early advance extended 18.55c for May and 18.09c for October or 17 to 18 points above Saturday's closing quotations. Trading was quiet but offerings were light and the market responded readily to small buying orders which appeared to come from sellers of late last week. Some trade buying was also reported but the advance met a little realizing and prices showed reactions of 2 or 3 points from the best at midday.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Big Aces Lead Market.

General Motors continued its sensational rise today with the trading volume holding up to the enormous scale witnessed in the short session. By mid-afternoon the price had reached 148 as compared with the opening of 145 and Saturday's start at 139⅞. Street reports were that "good" sources were still on the buying side. One of the big New York houses was said to have taken 75,000 shares during the first hour of the market. Steel common got going good today and supplied admirable assistance on the runup in Motors. When the General Motors move started late last week, Steel common failed to respond in any manner whatever, but today the "premier industrial" shouldered its way forward and at times was even crowding Motors for the limelight. Vanadium, Montana Power and some others in which selling had occurred on the break two weeks ago, rallied up sharply and added to the misery of the bottled-up shorts. However, bears maintained a measure of confidence in the down side and termed the present rise as a natural sequence of the previous break. Politics may have some part in the immediate action of the market, and some observers are quite sure that it has, but just in what way the presidential situation bears on the activity is not generally known, in fact it is doubtful if any but the "inmost" of insiders have the "dope," assuming, of course, that politics is an influence in the situation.

January Gasoline Figures.

Output of gasoline was 27,979,000 barrels or 859,000 daily, against 28,512,000 in December or 920,000 daily, and 27,340,000 barrels in January, 1927 or 882,000 daily. Consumption in January was 23,939,000 barrels or 675,000 daily, against 23,719,000 in December or 765,000 daily, and 17,444,000 barrels in January, 1927, or 577,000 daily. January gasoline consumption, while below December, showed an increase of 17 per cent over January, 1927. The decrease of 51,700 barrels a day in January crude oil output as compared with December was attributed largely to the Seminole district, where the decline was over 49,000 barrels a day. Production in most other fields, particularly Spindletop, dropped in January as development work and completions fell to new low marks.

Loree's "Fifth Trunk Line."

L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, returning from the Pacific Coast, said the proposal for a fifth trunk line was still an open matter and that the principals were still discussing it. Mr. Loree was optimistic on the outlook for the Delaware and Hudson Company in 1928. He said the falling off in earnings last year was largely due to the coal strike and that with this matter cleared up a better year was indicated.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe is handling less business than a year ago, says W. B. Storey, president, who thinks February also will show smaller earnings than the same month in 1927. The moisture situation in the winter wheat belt showed improvement in February, but rainfall in Southern California was below normal. Passenger traffic was light, so was oil traffic, but a more cheerful feeling prevailed throughout the road's cotton territory.

COMMERCIAL BUSINESS PROMOTES PROSPERITY

Prosperity in the United States is probably more general and more satisfactory than in any country in the world.

This prosperity is explained by the success of American commerce and industries, and that success has resulted from adhering to sound business principles.

A number of America's soundest commercial enterprises have for years been customers of this institution, which is a commercial bank exclusively.

In other words, the kinds of business that have made the nation prosperous are the kinds in which the Farmers Deposit National Bank has specialized for ninety-six years.

BROKERS' LOANS CONTINUE TO BE PUZZLE

By BROADAN WALL,
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NEW YORK, March 5.—"Brokers' loans" are the main stock market factor of the moment. Senators want to know about them as do every banker, broker and trader in Wall street. Everyone has an opinion thereon and practically every opinion is different. "Brokers' loans," in the final analysis, are governed by money conditions. There are less than half a dozen men in this country who can be regarded as expert on money affairs. Nevertheless the Senate calls first upon an "ex" reserve bank secretary and the result of its initial hearing was that most people are more confused about "brokers' loans" than ever before. Stock market fluctuations for the last week therefore have been practically meaningless. Those holding stocks don't want to liquidate while the failure to check unbridled manipulation of cornered stocks in the last months has made professionals too timid to sell short in sufficient volume to cause real liquidation. The result is a stand-off which promises to continue a little while longer.

Bankers advise investigators of their business to first take a six or seven years' course of instruction so as to have a little understanding of what are the facts.

SHOULD SEPARATE LOANS

Had the first witness at the Senate's loans hearings understood conditions he would have recommended that the reserve bank discriminate between borrowings on bonds and borrowings on stock collateral in its weekly report. Along these lines the stock exchange could have members show borrowings for speculative account separate from borrowings on new underwritings. Then the figures would truly show the amount of money used in speculation. Last week new bond and stock flotations jumped to over $200,000,000. That was the reason the so-called "brokers loans" were down only $8,000,000 despite the reactionary stock market. The week's figure will include borrowings made necessary by the $50,000,000 City of New York issue. Nevertheless if loans were to show an increase it would be blamed entirely on "stock gambling."

Conditions are better now than in former corrective periods because security price inflation can be remedied with less trouble and disturbance than inventory inflation.

"How much of a reduction in loans does the reserve board desire?" Such is the question asked by all. Even the reserve officials do not know. Having started their campaign to effect such reduction they want to carry it as far as possible. The greater the correction the longer the beneficial results will last. However, the lesson of 1926 was well learned and all possible steps will be taken to maintain orderly conditions. When drastic stock market reaction is threatened the money reins will be loosened.

CARRY CUSTOMERS' CASH

Several Stock Exchange firms report their loans would be much larger but for the number of customers carrying cash balances waiting for "bargains."

Secretary Mellon estimates the March 15 turnover of funds will amount to over $2,000,000,000. While the Treasury was wrong about the Federal Reserve's ideas regarding brokers' loans, its estimate must be accepted as official. Such a turnover of funds will establish a record for that date. Banks will call loans in preparation and a higher call rate must result. It would not be a surprise if the call rate jumped over 5 per cent. It will then be shown whether the reserve authorities will be forced to take more drastic measures to effect the desired reduction in loans.

When a report was circulated ot Durant having a block of 50,000 shares of Moon under the market, one broker remarked: "That's the trouble, everyone has something they are trying to get out of." Undoubtedly this condition is responsible for the checking of rallies.

GEN. MOTORS SKYROCKETS TO HIGH

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP.)—Violent bidding for the common stock of the General Motors Corporation, which was run up nearly 4 points to another new high record at 148 on an enormous tournover, again monopolized speculative interest in today's stock market. With General Motors, United States Steel common and American Can in the forefront of a broad advance, the general market showed signs of breaking out of the narrow trading area within which it has been fluctuating for the past month or so.

General Motors continued to respond to predictions of record-breaking first quarter earnings. Several of the other motors followed in its wake, notably Willys-Overland common and preferred, which also reached new high ground for the year. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, jumped 9 points to 342, or within 2 points of the record high for all time established last year.

United States Steel common, after a slow start, moved up nearly 3 points to 143 by early afternoon. Gulf and Sloss Sheffield steels and Colorado Fuel climbed 2 points or more. American Can also moved up 2 points to 79½.

Lowering of the renewal rate on call money from 4½ to 4¼ per cent had a bullish effect on sentiment. Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans during the morning, but there appeared to be a plentiful supply of funds on hand. Time money rates were unchanged. Wall street also was encouraged by the statement of President Storey, of Atchison, that business in the first six months of the year will equal the corresponding period last year, despite a poor start in some lines.

MACH. COMMON MAKES GAIN

There were no changes of importance in the securities list at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Trading was in light volume and the business was well scattered.

Glass stocks were slow in getting started, but early bids for shares in that section indicated that the gains of the previous week were holding. Blaw Knox Steel showed signs of moderate demand, but the early prices were even with the level prevailing on the close Saturday. William Zoller, which moved up a little at the end of the week, held the best part of its gain.

Carnegie Metals was a small fraction higher, but only a small volume of the stock was handled in the forenoon trading. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt sold at 50, unchanged from the last previous price, and Dixie Gas preferred was handled at 87½, the figure at which it changed hands during the greater part of last week.

American Window Glass Machine common broke the ice for the glass section, coming into the market at 24, up a point from the previous close, and later going forward to the best price of the current recovery. National Fireproofing was in good demand around 22, but there seemed enough of the stock available to take care of the bids at that figure.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, March 5.—Wheat prices showed an early upward trend today, whereas corn went lower. Decrease of 4,000,000 bushels in wheat afloat, together with continued unfavorable domestic crop reports, had a bullish effect on wheat, but corn reflected likelihood of visible supply enlargement. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, wheat later scored gains all around. Corn started at a shade to ⅛c decline and subsequently receded farther. Oats held steady. Provisions were easier but rallied.

At noon wheat was 1⅛c to 1¼c net higher and corn unchanged to ⅜c up.

With the amount of wheat on ocean passage showing a falling off today both as compared with last week and a year ago, traders took notice also that reports of world shipment were below requirement. Evidence was likewise at hand that Germany is a constant buyer both of wheat and rye. Meanwhile, rye in Chicago today sold at a new high price record for the season, and indications of heavy abandonment of domestic winter wheat acreage persisted, advices from some sections of Illinois predicting that as much as 50 per cent would be given up.

Favorable weather for the movement of corn led to early setbacks in price. Wheat strength, however, counted later as something of an offset. Falling off in the amount of corn afloat for Europe, as well as in the total of wheat on ocean passage, was given some attention.

H. L. and F. C. GROTE, Attorneys-at-Law,
Frick Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

IN THE Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania. In re application for satisfaction of mortgage: No. 1081, April Term, 1928.

To the Security Building and Loan Association of Homestead, Pa., or whoever may be the holder of said mortgage, take notice:

That Hermann L., Ludwig I. and Frederick C. Grote, trustees under the Deed of Trust of C. H. Grote, have filed a petition in the aforesaid court, at the above number and term, setting forth among other things, that they are the owners of certain real estate situate on Fifteenth avenue, Borough of Homestead, Allegheny county, Pa., bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot No. 20 in the plan of the sub-division of Lot No. 798 in the plan of the Homestead Bank and Life Insurance Company, as recorded in Plan Book Vol. 5, pages 290 and 291, and said sub-division plan in Plan Book Vol. 6, page 239, of the Recorder's Office of Allegheny county, said Lot No. 20 being bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning on the southeasterly side of Fifteenth Avenue at the distance of 57.30 feet southwardly from the corner of West street; thence extending in front or width on Fifteenth avenue southwardly 25 feet to Lot No. 21 in said sub-division plan; thence along the line of said Lot No. 21 southeastwardly 91.21 feet to land of West; thence along land of said West northwestwardly 25.3 feet to Lot No. 19 in said subdivision plan; thence along the line of said Lot No. 19 northwestwardly 89.84 feet to the place of beginning.

That there appears on the records of the Recorder's Office of Allegheny county against said property an unsatisfied mortgage, originally given by Patrick Sweeney to the Security Building and Loan Association of Homestead, Pa., and is dated May 16, 1891, acknowledged May 18, 1891, and recorded May 21, 1891, in Mortgage Book Vol. 559, page 495.

The said mortgage, which has been paid, still stands in the name of the Security Building and Loan Association of Homestead, Pa., which has long since gone out of business, and the residence, whereabouts or location of the said holder of the said mortgage, or its officers, is unknown; that there now exists the legal presumption of the payment of the mortgage by reason of the lapse of time, yet no satisfaction appears on the record thereof; that the period of twenty-one years and upwards has elapsed since the principal of the said mortgage became due and payable and no payment on account of either principal or interest has been made within that period on said mortgage, and no demand has been made therefor by anyone.

Wherefore the court made the following order:

"ORDER OF COURT.

"And now, to-wit: January —, 1928, the within petition presented in open court and upon consideration thereof, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that the Sheriff of Allegheny county serve a notice, stating the facts set forth in the said petition, upon the holder of the said mortgage, if to be found in the said county, and if not so found, then to give public notice by advertisement, in one or more newspapers published within the said county once a week for four weeks successively prior to the next term of court, requiring said party to appear at said term and answer the petition as aforesaid, or show cause why satisfaction of said mortgage should not be entered of record as prayed for."

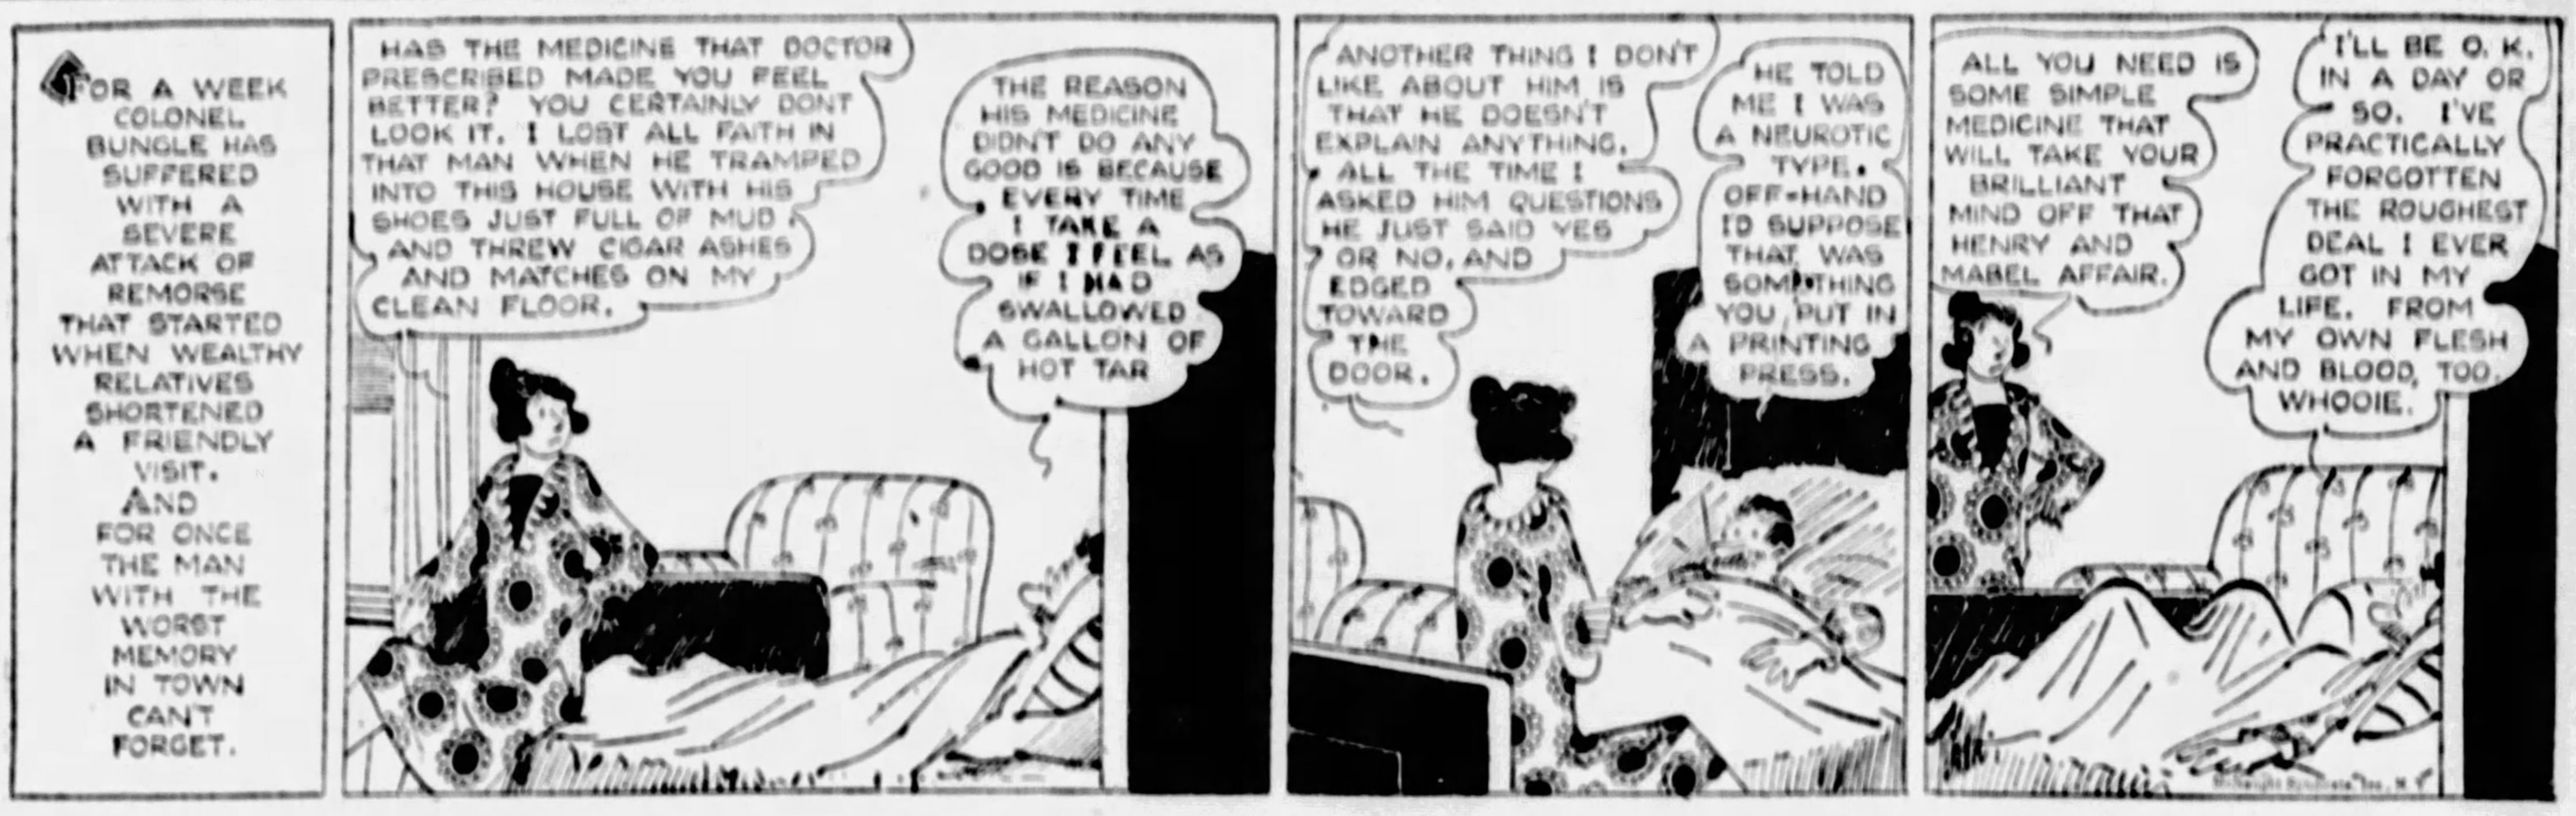
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . George Is Down, But Not Out



FOR A WEEK COLONEL BUNGLE HAS SUFFERED WITH A SEVERE ATTACK OF REMORSE THAT STARTED WHEN WEALTHY RELATIVES SHORTENED A FRIENDLY VISIT. AND FOR ONCE THE MAN WITH THE WORST MEMORY IN TOWN CAN'T FORGET.
HAS THE MEDICINE THAT DOCTOR PRESCRIBED MADE YOU FEEL BETTER? YOU CERTAINLY DONT LOOK IT. I LOST ALL FAITH IN THAT MAN WHEN HE TRAMPED INTO THIS HOUSE WITH HIS SHOES JUST FULL OF MUD AND THREW CIGAR ASHES AND MATCHES ON MY CLEAN FLOOR.
THE REASON HIS MEDICINE DIDN'T DO ANY GOOD IS BECAUSE EVERY TIME I TAKE A DOSE I FEEL AS IF I HAD SWALLOWED A GALLON OF HOT TAR
ANOTHER THING I DON'T LIKE ABOUT HIM IS THAT HE DOESN'T EXPLAIN ANYTHING. ALL THE TIME I ASKED HIM QUESTIONS HE JUST SAID YES OR NO, AND EDGED TOWARD THE DOOR.
HE TOLD ME I WAS A NEUROTIC TYPE. OFF-HAND I'D SUPPOSE THAT WAS SOMETHING YOU PUT IN A PRINTING PRESS.

BUGS BAER Says

EVERY village has its cleaning and dyeing establishments where dull human sparrows are transformed into bright canaries and birds of Paradise.

Which makes New York City exactly 45,000 villages. For that number of cleaners and dyers strutted out on a strike last week.

This strike has already had a terrific rebound on the smartly creased and dapperly pressed troops who pass in review on Fifth avenue every afternoon.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

That parade already looks like Coxey's army after a night in the barns and haystacks of Ohio. The well dressed fop and fopess are as baggy as observation blimps.

The strike is not quite so stringent as it might have been before the eighteenth amendment to our loose-leaf constitution.

Thanks to the superior chemical properties of hootchboot liquor, two citizens can always clean and scour their clothes by breathing on one another.

The wife buys all our clothes and forgets to take us along for the fittings.

With the result that some years we are short and stout and other years we are a tall, slim man.

The opera hat has an invaluable coating of moss on the side nearest the sun. We have a suspicion that the tuxedo coat was once a Prince Albert, but like a tadpole it dropped its tail when it reached maturity.

The vest is of the Henry Clay period. And cleaning will not make it any younger.

In fact, the man with an ancestral wardrobe should hesitate before resigning it to the mercy of a strong-armed presser, who could rub the nap off a grizzly in a fair fight.

And while the stains and spots of a cafeteria existence multiply with each meal, we are not in accord with the cleaners and dyers who persist in obliterating the sparkling souvenirs and multi-colored mementoes of happy picnics in the one-armed lunchrooms.

What of the Stockholders?

Do They Approve Pittsburgh Coal Company's Pledge-Breaking?—A Hint from Mr. Rockefeller

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is not an ''enemy of American business.'' He is certainly not an ''agitator,'' nor an ''unbalanced radical.'' No one ever has called HIM a ''muck-raker.''

Consider, then, these words of his, spoken on the stand the other day before a committee of the United States Senate:

> ''I believe in the business of the country. I believe that business can be run on a sound, high, fair basis. AS A STOCKHOLDER IN ANY COMPANY, I WANT NO PROFIT DERIVED FROM COMPROMISE WITH RIGHT. I want no officer in any company in which I own stock, whether he be high or low, or any employe, to do anything that I would not myself be willing to do.''

Do the stockholders of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, that deliberately broke its contract, the ''Jacksonville agreement,'' approve of that betrayal?

Among these stockholders are found the proudest names in Pittsburgh, although in recent years practical control of the company's policies is understood to have passed to Eastern capitalists.

Do these Pittsburghers indorse pledge-breaking? Or will they demand a house-cleaning by approving the ringing words of Mr. Rockefeller?

Incidentally, will the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce have the courage now to tell the whole truth about the breaking of this Jacksonville contract?

Here is a clean-cut issue between right and wrong!

Ignoring of 100 Tags Reflects on Our Method

Issuing of warrants for 200 motorists who ignored police tags for violations of automobile laws last year appears to indicate some laxness on the part of either the authorities or our laws as well as offending car owners. It is said several of them have received as high as 100 tags.

Ignoring of one tag should be sufficient to cause the issuance of a warrant, and that immediately. A tag attached to the car of a motorist or given to him by an officer really is a courtesy to him. It saves him from immediate arrest and posting a bond for later appearance. It specifies him tentatively as a law-breaker but releases him under his own recognizance, the assumption being that he will be honorable enough to appreciate the courtesy and appear in traffic court at the proper time.

Of course, it is not to be expected that every person tagged will realize its import to himself as a saver of time. There are those who regard tagging as just one of the little annoyances of life not to be considered seriously—something to be laughed off, in fact. We know there are such persons in the world, but they should not be permitted to laugh it off more than a day or two. If they do not appear in reasonable time to explain to the court, they should be arrested.

The fact that some of them were able to repeat their offenses to the number of 100 not only is a reflection on our method of handling such cases, but is something in the way of extending them the privilege of doing it. Any man who has "got away with it'' more than once is justified in believing that he can do it indefinitely. Had he been promptly arrested for the first offense there would have been no such misunderstanding.

Prison Farms Hit Crime And Dope Slavery Both

Lincoln said that the country could not exist half slave and half free.

One form of slavery still awaits abolishment—the slavery to narcotics.

No stroke of pen can make free men of these slaves, who, in this country, number between a million and a million and a half men, women and, alas! children.

Nor can it be done by passing a law. It must be a slow, dogged, day-by-day fight against a disease which is a deadly habit and a habit which is a deadly disease.

Nevertheless, a law by Congress can help. It can establish the institution to cure the drug addicts in prison. Among all the slaves of dope, these are the most pitiable in themselves and at the same time the most dangerous to society.

Drug addicts contribute six out of every ten inmates in the overcrowded Federal prisons at Atlanta and Leavenworth.

Medical and crime experts together are agreed that it is possible to cure many of these victims on prison farms.

A bill to establish two Federal prison farms has been introduced by Representative Porter of Pennsylvania. Congress has no duty more important than to pass this measure.

It is important because it will strike at the breeding places of dope addiction. Those who are not drug fiends when they enter prison become so before they leave. One of the symptoms of the use of drugs is the mania to spread their use. The prison is the ideal place for a man to infect his fellow inmates.

In most cases a criminal addict cured will mean a criminal reformed. Police records, when sifted to the bottom, are largely the story of crime committed in order to get the funds to buy morphine, heroin, cocaine or marihuana.

In reality it won't cost any extra money.

The Federal prisons must be relieved of the overcrowding anyhow.

Two new prisons of some sort must be built immediately.

Let's build the kind that will strike at the root of dope slavery and crime alike.

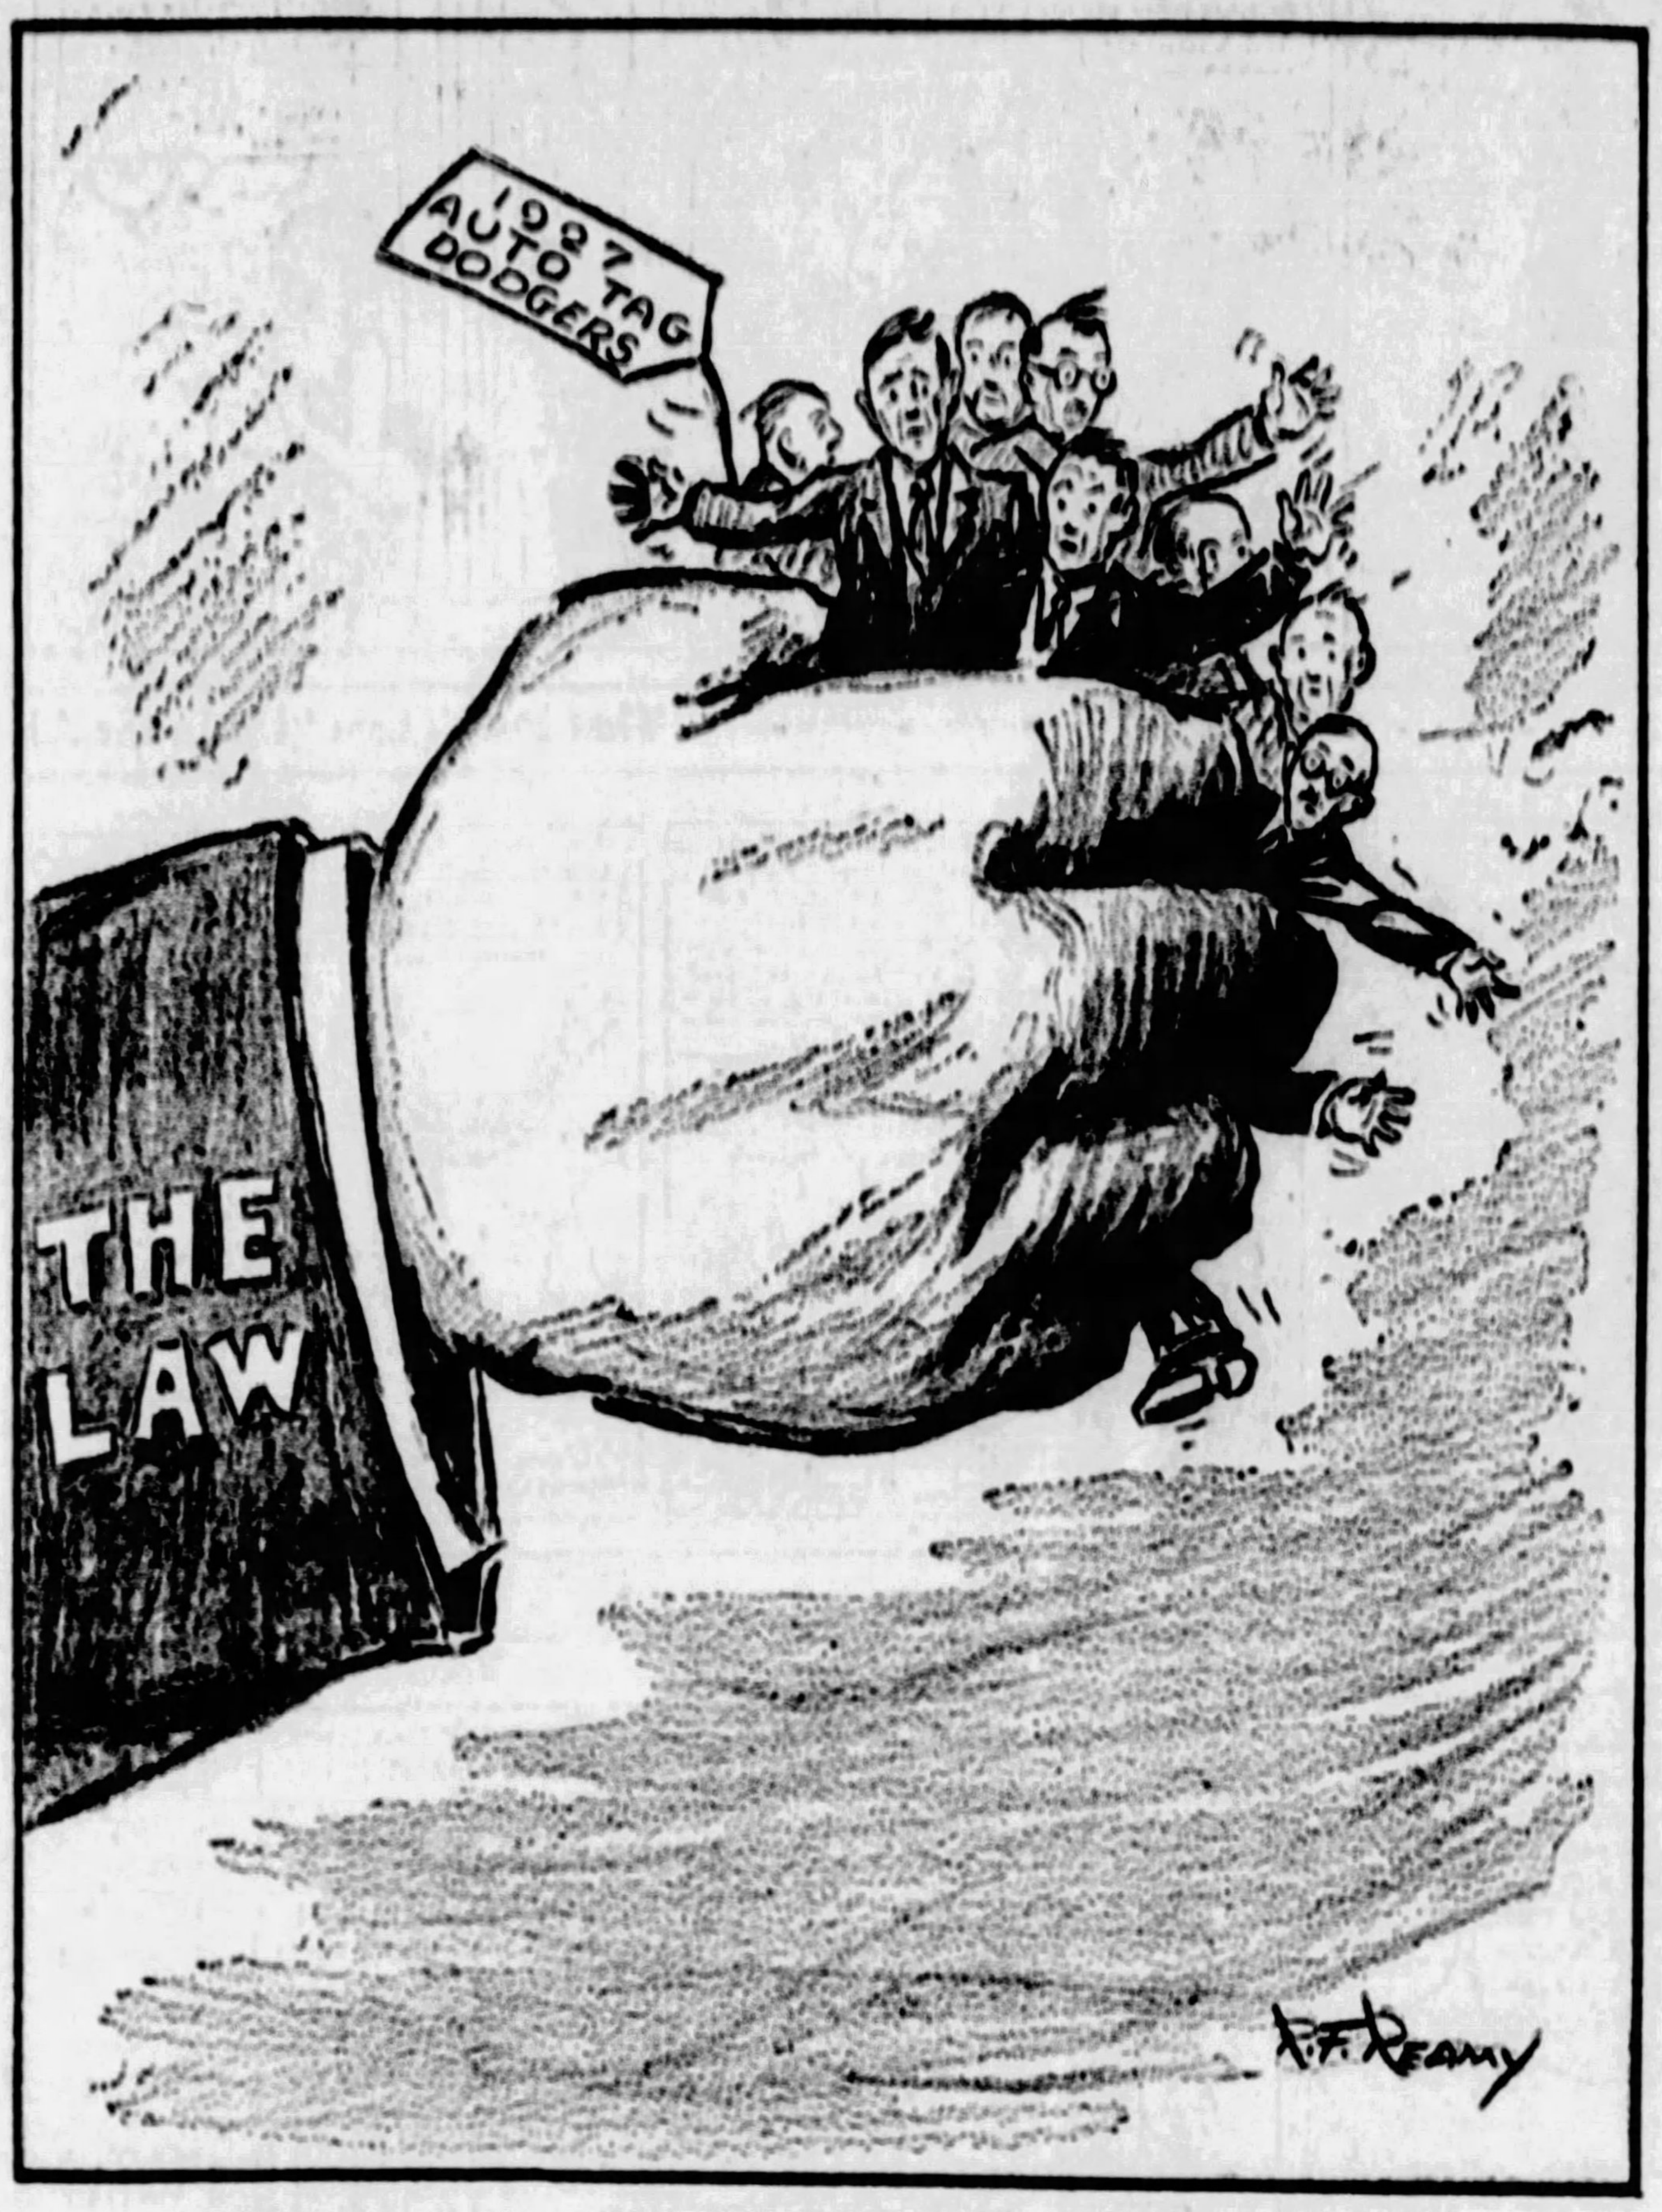
ONE BIG HANDFUL AND MORE TO COME



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Chemistry of Thought

THE Department of Public Relations of the University of Chicago announces that "proof that thinking is a chemical process is expected by University of Chicago physicists to result from successful experiments of Dr. Ralph Waldo Gerard, assistant professor of physiology, which have demonstrated for the first time that nerve impulses result from an oxidation process accompanied by the production of heat."

And Dr. Anton J. Carlton, chairman of the Department of Physiology at the university, is quoted as saying: "Thought processes, in the light of Dr. Gerard's experiments, are no more mysterious, or, if you please, just as mysterious, as the contraction of a muscle. The nerve process and the thinking process are in the same category, that of a chemical reaction."

The university has granted funds to Dr. Gerard to construct delicate apparatus which will be used in an attempt to prove the chemical nature of the thought process.

It seems that physiologists have been divided on the subject of the nature of the nervous impulses, one side holding it to be a physical and the other a chemical reaction. If it is chemical, through oxidation, there should be an emission of heat, and Dr. Gerard has demonstrated such emission of heat by constructing an apparatus delicate enough to detect one-millionth of one-millionth of an ampere of electricity generated by the heat of the process.

This is a great achievement in scientific technique, and young Dr. Gerard will deservedly win a high place for himself in the ever-widening field of research. But the general reading public should not misunderstand such statements as that thinking is a chemical process, or a chemical reaction. Such a statement is merely descriptive of the change that occurs in the nerves when a man thinks. It in no sense accounts for the nature of thought itself. It cannot, and does not pretend to, explain how we think or how we summon and marshal our thoughts.

There was once a Ralph Waldo Emerson who wrote "Beware when the great God lets loose a thinker on this planet. Then all thinks are at risk."

And again: "God enters by a private door into every individual."

That a chemical reaction accompanies thinking, who will be foolish enough to deny. We know now, thanks to Dr. Gerard, that it is a chemical and not a physical reaction. But we are not, therefore, to assume that it is nothing more than a reaction of matter as we ordinarily know matter. The let-loose thinker of Emerson was something other than a collocation of chemical substances. Chemistry and its laws are means to an end, but the end is not theirs nor the beginning.

When Shakespeare wrote the sonnet beginning:

> "When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
> I summon up remembrance of things past"—

an ingenious device might have detected the generation in the cells of his brain of a million-millionth of an ampere of electricity. But was that the thought? Or does that tell us anything whatever concerning the generation, the origin or the nature of the thought? It is far easier to believe with Emerson that "God entered by a private door" into the poet's mind.

I am not contending against the advance of science. On the contrary, I want to see it go as far and as deep and as fast as it can. But I do protest when such discoveries are held up—though not by the discoverers themselves—as showing that man is now in the way of knowing the whole secret of his existence, and has no longer any reason to look higher than his own head. This tendency is found not so much among real leaders of science as among the crusaders against religion—not against any special form of religion, but against the fundamental idea of the existence of a higher power in the universe—who adopt for a war cry: "Kill the Beast!"

Cost of Colds

EVERYBODY has a cure for colds, yet the colds persist. The money lost through idleness because of colds runs yearly into hundreds of millions of dollars in the United States.

So the gift to Johns Hopkins of a $195,000 fund to promote a five-year intensive study into the causes and treatment of colds will make a very good bargain if it shall abate only a small part of this common menace.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Take It With Salt

WELL, well, old man, aren't you flattered when a young woman appears to take some interest in you?

You think she is laughing at your wise-cracks, when it is very likely that she is laughing at you!

Young women will not waste their time with men old enough to be their fathers unless they think they have something to gain thereby.

The most ridiculous person imaginable is the elder man who tries to be attractive to young girls.

It is not surprising that the young girl appears to be having a good time—for she is having it, making a fool of you.

She is trying to see just how she can make you perform.

She may not want your pocketbook, but she does want to "get you going."

Better keep within your class, you foxy old fellow.

Act sensible for a man of your age.

You might be attractive to persons of your own age, but not to young and pretty girls, unless they are after material gain.

Don't be a fool.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Amulet

I WEAR it, like a charm upon my breast,
A charm that can avert each dire despair
And in the midst of tumult give me rest;
I wear, always, your prayer.

Through sunlit hours or seasons dark with fear
When grisly dread and doubt creep everywhere,
Above all treasures then I hold it dear,
Your pity-prompted prayer.

No foe can conquer when I clasp it so,
And shadowed hours must soon give place to fair;
My amulet wherever I may go,
I wear, always, your prayer.

Tales that are Told

Tricked

ALTHOUGH he lacked riches, Jones was not lacking in other respects.

A few days ago, while he was in sole charge of the house, a burly, formidable-looking tramp knocked at the door and insolently demanded food.

"What's more," he added, "unless I get it, there'll be trouble!"

Jones didn't show any sign of concern or anger. Instead, he made as though to go to the larder in quest of food, but really he went into the dining room, and there wound up the alarm clock, thus causing the bell to ring furiously. Then he shouted at the face of the timepiece:

"Hallo! Give me the police station—yes, police station. Quickly!"

The tramp at the front door was all attention, and really thought Jones was speaking on the telephone.

"Are you the police station? Good! Please send an officer round to my house at once. There's a tramp here who refuses to move. What? Yes, certainly he ought to be locked up. What? Be here in a minute, will he? Good!"

And Jones went to the front door again, chuckling gleefully, because the tramp had gone. What a story to tell at the club!

Then he turned round and discovered that three hats and four overcoats had gone as well!

Not All Honey

JONES was a thrifty fellow and a commercial traveler, and when he married he decided that his wife could ask nothing better in the way of a honeymoon trip than to be allowed to accompany him on his long round in a country district.

He was feeling very bucked with himself and could not resist telling his wife how well known he was at all the places where they had to stop.

"And at the Swan, where I always stay when I'm in Smally, they not only reserve a place for me, but, knowing how partial I am to honey, they always put a pot of it on my table."

When, however, they took their places in the restaurant no pot of honey was to be seen.

The boaster called to the waiter, and demanded, irritably:

"Where is my honey?"

The waiter seemed to hesitate a moment, and then replied, apologetically:

"She left last week, sir."—London Tit Bits.

A Rattling Good Yarn

A NATURALIST installed as pets a family of rattlesnakes, father and mother and eight little rattlers, removing the fangs from all of them. After some months these pets became used to the naturalist and members of his family, learning to distinguish them from strangers.

Early one morning, the naturalist was aroused by something tugging at the sleeve of his pajamas. Switching on the light, he discovered that the mother snake had awakened him. She dropped to the floor and started for the door. He slipped on a dressing-gown and followed the snake downstairs to the dining room.

There on the floor before the sideboard crouched a burglar, trembling with fright. In front of him was coiled the male rattler, his head swaying threateningly and his fourteen rattles vibrating. On the sill of the window, through which the burglar had entered, were the eight little snakes rattling for a policeman for all they were worth. In future, the burglar will avoid naturalists' houses.

Out of His Turn

HE ENTERED the solicitor's office with a face full of trouble. His wife had left home the previous day, and he wanted to know how to get her back.

"What happened to cause her to go? Come, think!" prompted the solicitor, as the husband hesitated.

"There was nothing unusual," he answered, slowly. "But as I was wiping the porridge from my hair—"

"The porridge from your hair? How on earth—"

"She threw it. I'll admit I'd thrown a cup of tea over her; but, then, she had hit me over the head with a wet dish-rag."

"What for?"

"Well, I'd pitched her hat into the sink; but she'd locked up my trousers first!"

"Locked up your trousers?"

"Ah, I see now why she cleared out!" and the husband's face suddenly beamed with the light of discovery. "It was me throwing that photo-frame. It wasn't sporting of me to throw that after throwing the dish. It was her turn."—London Tit Bits.

O. O. McINTYRE

In Gay Paree

PARIS, March 5.—The paths of most Americans at the cocktail hour lead to the Ritz bars—one for ladies and one for gentlemen, separated by an entrance hall running off rue Cambon. French is rarely spoken there. Everything is as American as the seventh inning stretch.

Frank, the manager, is reputed a millionaire, serving cocktails on a percentage basis to Americans. Here one sees the true cosmopolitan crowd. This evening I noted the Marquis of Queensberry, Count Boni de Castellane, Prince Andrew of Greece, Berry Wall, former New York Beau Brummel; Erskine Gwynne, the American playboy of Paris; Prince Obolensky, Sir Charles Mendl, William Elliott and Jed Kiley.

Gentlemen are not permitted in the ladies' room without a lady. Frank frowns on alcoholic hilarity, and drinking at the Ritz has attained formal dignity. Every now and then a raccoon coat is given a hearty shove through the revolving door. There goes Harvard for ten yards!

Heavily salted Saratoga chips are at each table, and a champagne cocktail is the popular tipple. A champagne cocktail is merely a glass of champagne with a twist of lemon peel and costs 35 cents. By 8:30 o'clock in the evening the Ritz bars are completely deserted.

Then M. Frank doffs his white bar coat, dons a richly fur-lined great-coat, the chausseur whistles, a limousine rolls up, and M. Frank bowls away to his estate on the outskirts of St. Cloud. Perhaps no bartender in the world's history has achieved his opulence.

His autograph book, kept on a bar shelf, contains the signatures of notables from over the world—an Egyptian khedive, the Sultan of Morocco, the King of Spain, the Prince of Wales, a prince of Norway, and such. Every night it goes into a steel vault, for it is worth a small fortune.

All Ritz bar waiters are well off. They receive inconsequential wages, but tips are enormous—a symbol of American generosity. To land a job at the Ritz bar is the supreme goal of this class of workers in France, England and Switzerland.

The Citroen automobile electric sign that coils its serpentine way around Eiffel Tower is soon to be a thing of the past. The manufacturer is to devote the huge sum it costs to newspaper and magazine advertising. France raised a ruckus when permission was given to use the spiraling structure for advertising display. It received newspaper publicity comparable to a presidential election in America—which publicity did not annoy M. Citroen a particle.

A gentleman said to be one of the best dressed in Paris appeared at Ciro's in a Tuxedo but with a low turndown collar and an extremely thin white bow tie. His breast pocket handkerchief was black silk.

A section of the Cafe de la Paix—perhaps the most famous cafe in the world—is boarded up. At first I had the melancholy thought a portion of it was being given over to trade, but a waiter explained they were just brightening things up and installing new lights for the spring stampede.

My French this trip is utterly futile. When I left here eight months ago I could, with my boyish timidity, order cafe au lait et brioche without getting lobster salad. Today I asked the femme de chambre to fetch my laundry and she appeared with a bone for the dog.

Three days have passed now with downcast skies and occasional spatters of rain. It has been many weeks since Paris saw a flash of the sun. Yet the city appears as gay and volatile as ever it was, despite the mist.

This correspondent's confusion when a cafe sommelier presents a wine card is quite pathetic. My worldly experience in ordering liquor has been confined to light or dark beer.

Latin America

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

President Coolidge and a lot of other prominent men, including ex-Secretary of State Hughes and Ambassador Morrow, of Mexico, went to the Latin-American Congress at Havana.

This is manifestly a gesture intended to cultivate better relations with our other American neighbors.

Why not?

Heretofore we have been almost entirely an English colony. Most of our people are of English descent, our laws and customs came to us by way of England, and notwithstanding our war with our mother country she has had much to do with shaping our character.

But times are changing.

America is rapidly ceasing to be, culturally speaking, an English colony. Less and less it derives its ideas, moral, artistic and otherwise, from Europe.

Time was when we only painted and wrote stories in feeble imitation of European models. Our great men were measured only by European standards. Most of the capital that built up American enterprises came from Europe.

The situation has changed.

We have become the richest nation in the world.

Other things follow riches. So we have developed an indigenous art, literature, etc.

South America, as well as North America, has made wonderful progress.

And there is no reason why all the virile peoples on this new continent should not stand together.

It seems a far cry from British Canadians to Spanish and Portuguese South Americans, but they are all human, after all, and their similarity is greater than their difference. We find we have more to sell to them and to buy from them than is the case with Europe. The Latin Americans are a cultured and gentle folk. They have achieved great strides in self government. They are our worthy companions in the march of progress.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

IT USED to be wine that we liked better when it was old. Now women of 50 are marrying lads of 23. A woman of 70 went into Chicago's domestic court and complained that her husband, 60, was too old for her. She said it in a picture hat with a bow tied under her chin.

There are few girls named Daisy any more. The girls who told on the $50,000,000 diamond robbers were named Rita and Leonie. Robbers should start picking Daisies.

Mary Cucci, 15, of New Britain, Conn., lies in bed staring at the ceiling, a prayer book on her chest and one hand outstretched in case of any loose change. Daddy Cucci says Mark talks with the dead. So many people come to consult her, that papa gave up his job to manage Mary. Cucci says Mary is "an" angel. He meant "my."

William Woods Plankington, 21 inherited $4,000,000. He is working for $20 a week and says he'd rather take the girls out on the money he earns. Which is hardly good news for the girls. It might be all right to go out and enjoy the $20 if the girls could keep their mind off the $4,000,000 in the bank.

At the opening of a women's shop in New York, a model in a flesh-colored satin robe, with pink lace trailing behind her, was being optically devoured.

"We used to call that a tea gown," said a white-haired lady.

The model took the sandbags off her most patronizing smile and said in the most supercilious voice:

"I am very much afraid, that I still call it a tea gown."

One of those cute flappers, seeing the lady's embarrassment, said:

"You don't tell us! And what are you afraid of?"

Unless you saw that crushing glance hurled at the flapper you ain't never seen any real scorn.

Dr. Morris Osof's wife called him a miser. His son said he was a "dead one and merely existed," to which his mother replied: "My dear son, I never knew you could say such clever things."

Osof told this in his answer to his wife's bill for divorce. Mrs. Osof said the son's "estimate" of his dad was "admirable."

Mrs. Osof wants this "dead miser" to pay her $115 a week and $7,500 counsel fees.

Gone Far Enough

ORVILLE WRIGHT'S deal with the British Museum permits him to recall the Kitty Hawk plane at will.

Now that he has eased his feelings so far as the Smithsonian is concerned, a notice of recall seems in fairness due the innocent bystanders.

The place for the pioneer American plane is on American soil amid the other great monuments to American achievement.
